YMCA's $100,000 Claim on Council Agenda

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON
The YMCA has filed a $100,000 claim against the City of Kingston charging negligence on the part of the city involving a broken sewer line on Pine Grove Avenue that flooded the basement of the YMCA causing extensive damage.

The Y claims that its building was flooded on several occasions between June 25 and July 27, especially during the period of heavy rains at the end of June with resultant rain, waste water and "filthy and noxious" substances being deposited in its basement. The YMCA is located on Broadway at the corner of Pine Grove Avenue. The broken sanitary sewer pipe is under Pine Grove Avenue between the YMCA and the bus terminal.

The notice of claim, filed by the law firm of St. John, Ronder and Bell, will be read at Tuesday night's regular Common Council meeting and referred to Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein for study.

The Pine Grove Avenue sewage repair job was contracted to the Turk Construction Company on an emergency basis in mid-July and was completed last week at a cost of some $59,000. The city contended that the damage was caused by the storms in late June and early July and successfully petitioned the federal Disaster Assistance Administration for reimbursement. City Engineer Thomas R. Wickman said the federal government will pay "about $54,000" toward the overall cost.

Also on the agenda are requests from Mayor Francis R. Koenig for the transfer of $180,000 in revenue sharing funds to the general account; $150,000 to purchase new fire trucks and $30,000 to pay for paving the three new city parking lots on Central Broadway.

The letter on the fire trucks, dated Aug. 29, notes that the Common Council had previously authorized a bond issue to purchase of a snorkel truck ($69,000 in 1968) but the truck, after failing to meet city specifications on three separate occasions, was finally rejected last year.

Koenig is now asking for money for a 100-foot aerial ladder truck, to be housed at the Fair Street Station, and "possibly three pumps." He did not say where the pumps would be housed.

Koenig also pointed out in his letter to the Council that by paying cash for the trucks instead of bonding them out, the city would realize a "considerable saving" in interest charges.

The Common Council approved a $66,000 bond issue for the purchase of the three parking lots in March. That money included acquisition and demolition costs but not paving costs.

The city's revenue sharing account now shows a total of $490,129 received between Jan. 1, 1972 and June 30 of this year with another $2,475 earned in interest for a total, on June 30, of $492,604. The city shows expenditures of $155,000 (to pay salaries in the police department), leaving $337,604, as of June 30.

On July 9, the city received a revenue sharing check for $104,782 and can expect to receive a similar check during the first week of October.

The city will receive an additional $10,400 in interest in October on a $195,000 nine-month note taken out in January. That interest was not listed in the June 30 revenue sharing report because it had not been paid at that time, city officials said.

Koenig also is notifying the Council of his reappointment of three persons to city boards: Daniel Smith of 114 Hunter Street to a four-year term on the Board of Public Works and Paul Sogna of 147 Green Street and Albert E. Milliken of 224 Fair Street to three-year terms to the Landmarks Preservation Commission.

Robert Herzog, owner of Kingston Plaza, is seeking a tax reduction on the shopping complex. Herzog says that the Plaza is assessed (for 1973-74) at $1,080,000. He wants a reduction of $429,000. That too, will be referred to Klein.

The Kingston Urban Renewal Agency is asking final approval of a proposal by Whitale Inc. to build an office building at the junction of Clinton Avenue Extension and Fair Street Project. There was no opposition at a public hearing last week and Council approval is expected.

The aldermen meet at 7:30 p.m. at city hall, 1 Meadow Street.

'Nixon, Agnew Really Pulling Together'

No Talk of Resignation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew reviewed Agnew's legal and political troubles for two hours Saturday, and reportedly there was no talk of the vice president resigning. "They're really pulling together," an Agnew aide said.

At the vice president's request, he and Nixon met alone at the White House for the first time since Agnew personally informed Nixon nearly a month ago he was under federal investigation in connection with an alleged kickback scheme involving Maryland contractors.

Afterwards, the White House described it as a "thorough discussion" and "a good session." An Agnew spokesman said it was a "very, very satisfactory meeting" in which they reviewed the way the vice president and his lawyers were handling the affair.

"The vice president brought the President up to date on current matters involving himself," White House Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said. "It was a good session."

Nixon and the vice president met alone at Agnew's request—in the President's Oval Office about nine hours after Nixon returned from a 12-day working vacation at San Clemente, Calif. Warren refused to give any details of their discussion, saying it was "a private meeting."

"There was no discussion of Agnew resigning," Warren said, nor was there any review of constitutional questions about Agnew's legal status as vice president while under criminal investigation.

Agnew's press spokesman, Marsh Thomson, confirmed Warren's remarks and said "they had a very, very satisfactory meeting together." Thomson said there was "nothing of a major, special nature to the meeting."

Other sources said Agnew, who has seen his lawyers for each of the past two or three days, reviewed "legal strategy" with Nixon, although Thomson denied it. Thomson did say the two discussed "the way it is being handled by him (Agnew) and his lawyers."

GOP Leaders Divided On Agnew's Situation

It was the first face-to-face meeting between Nixon and Agnew since Aug. 7, the day before Agnew went on nationwide television to deny allegations he had received kickbacks from government contractors in Maryland.

Agnew disclosed then that he was under federal investigation for possible violation of tax, extortion, bribery and conspiracy laws, and declared he would remain in office and fight to prove his innocence.

There have been published reports recently, notably a Time magazine article, that U.S. Attorney George Beall might be ready to present evidence involving Agnew to a federal grand jury in Baltimore.

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, who was spending the Labor Day weekend at Cape Cod, Mass., has said he will make the ultimate decision whether the government seeks an indictment against Agnew.

Asked whether Nixon was supporting Agnew, Thomson said: "They're pulling together."

Other sources said later that Agnew "did all the talking" during the two-hour session. White House aides indicated that Nixon was sitting by and "just going to let the thing unravel."

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler denied that Nixon had a "contingency list" of possible candidates for vice president should Agnew be forced to resign.

After his two-hour conference with Agnew, Nixon met alone with his senior domestic advisors, counselors Melvin R. Laird and Bryce N. Harlow and White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig.

That discussion presumably dealt with the political repercussions of the Agnew investigation, as well as the administration's legislative plans when Congress returns next Tuesday.

Later Nixon flew to the Camp David, Md., mountaintop retreat for the holiday weekend. Accompanying him on the helicopter were his wife Pat, his daughter Tricia, wearing a bright pink pants outfit, and Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, his close friend from Key Biscayne, Fla.

Standing on the south lawn in Washington's sweltering humid weather, Nixon waved goodbye to aides and reporters who stood on the portico to watch him take off.

Mamie Eisenhower was invited to join the First Family for dinner Saturday, along with Julie and David Eisenhower, who planned to remain for the weekend.

Denmark's Worst Hotel Blaze Since WWII

19 Americans Perish in Fire

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — When they leaped from windows of Denmark's worst hotel blaze in a generation gutted the 19th century Hafnia—described as a "fire trap"—before dawn Saturday, killing at least 35 persons, including 19 Americans. Another 20 guests were still missing, police said.

Police refused to identify the victims until their relatives and two children by putting them in a bathtub filled with cold water. The father was found lying across the tub over the bodies of his family, police said. The Danish Fire Brigade said officials had been warned repeatedly that the 75-year-old hotel was a hazard because it lacked elementary fire prevention equipment.

"The hotel was a fire trap and we have several times warned Danish authorities about this as well as other hotels in the old-fashioned style here in Copenhagen," Jan Amnizboel, chief of the Copenhagen fire brigade, told UPI.

Police managed to identify 15 victims by late Saturday and set about the task of discovering their relatives.

He and his wife fled the thick smoke to a balcony, closing the French doors behind them.

"All above us on the fourth and fifth floors it was absolute pandemonium," he said. "We could hear people screaming for help ... shouting, 'Help us! Save us!'"

"I think most of them at that point were suffocating rather than burning," he said.

One of the survivors, Jules Fine of Honolulu, said he was glad he spent the extra money for a room with a bath. All rooms with baths were in the front of the building.

Fine, an assistant inspector with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said, "I think the reason we were so lucky was that we had a room with a bath, which is in the front of the hotel. The people in the back weren't so lucky."

Sailors Escaped by Whisker

CORK, Ireland (UPI) — Two British submariners landed in Cork Saturday en route home from their harrowing 75-hour trapped in a minisubmarine. They said they felt "great" after what officials described as the deepest underwater rescue in history.

The two men, Roger Mallinson, 35, and Roger Chapman, 28, were brought to the surface with the aid of an American robot submarine which finally succeeded in attaching a stout rope to their trapped submarine after several fruitless tries by other minisubs.

Drinking champagne, the two sailors played down their ordeal.

"I feel great!" Chapman said as he and Mallinson clambered unaided from their disabled craft 75 hours and 56 minutes after it sank Wednesday while laying a transatlantic telephone cable.

During a brief stopover in Cork, where they were taken by helicopter enroute to a reunion with their families in England, the two men said their only anxious moments came while they were being winched up from the sea bed.

"It was rough," Mallinson said. "We were swinging back and forth."

Mallinson denied earlier reports that they had little more than an hour's supply of oxygen left when they reached the surface. He said there was about a day's supply of air remaining.

Span Job Behind Schedule But Hopeful of Oct. 25

KINGSTON Reconstruction work on the Rondout Creek Bridge is "a couple of weeks behind schedule," but officials of the State Department of Transportation are still hopeful of a Oct. 25 reopening "or thereabouts."

A spokesman for the state said that Kleven Construction Company of Westchester County which has the $1.7 million contract, is behind schedule now "but is making progress toward catching up."

"If he continues making progress at the rate he's going now, he'll be somewhere in that area" (the Oct. 25 reopening date), a state spokesman said.

Reportedly, Kleven had "some problems of coordination" when he started work on the job, July 9, some two weeks behind schedule. "This is a very difficult job," the state spokesman said. "It involves tremendous coordination. It took him time to get things meshing at the start."

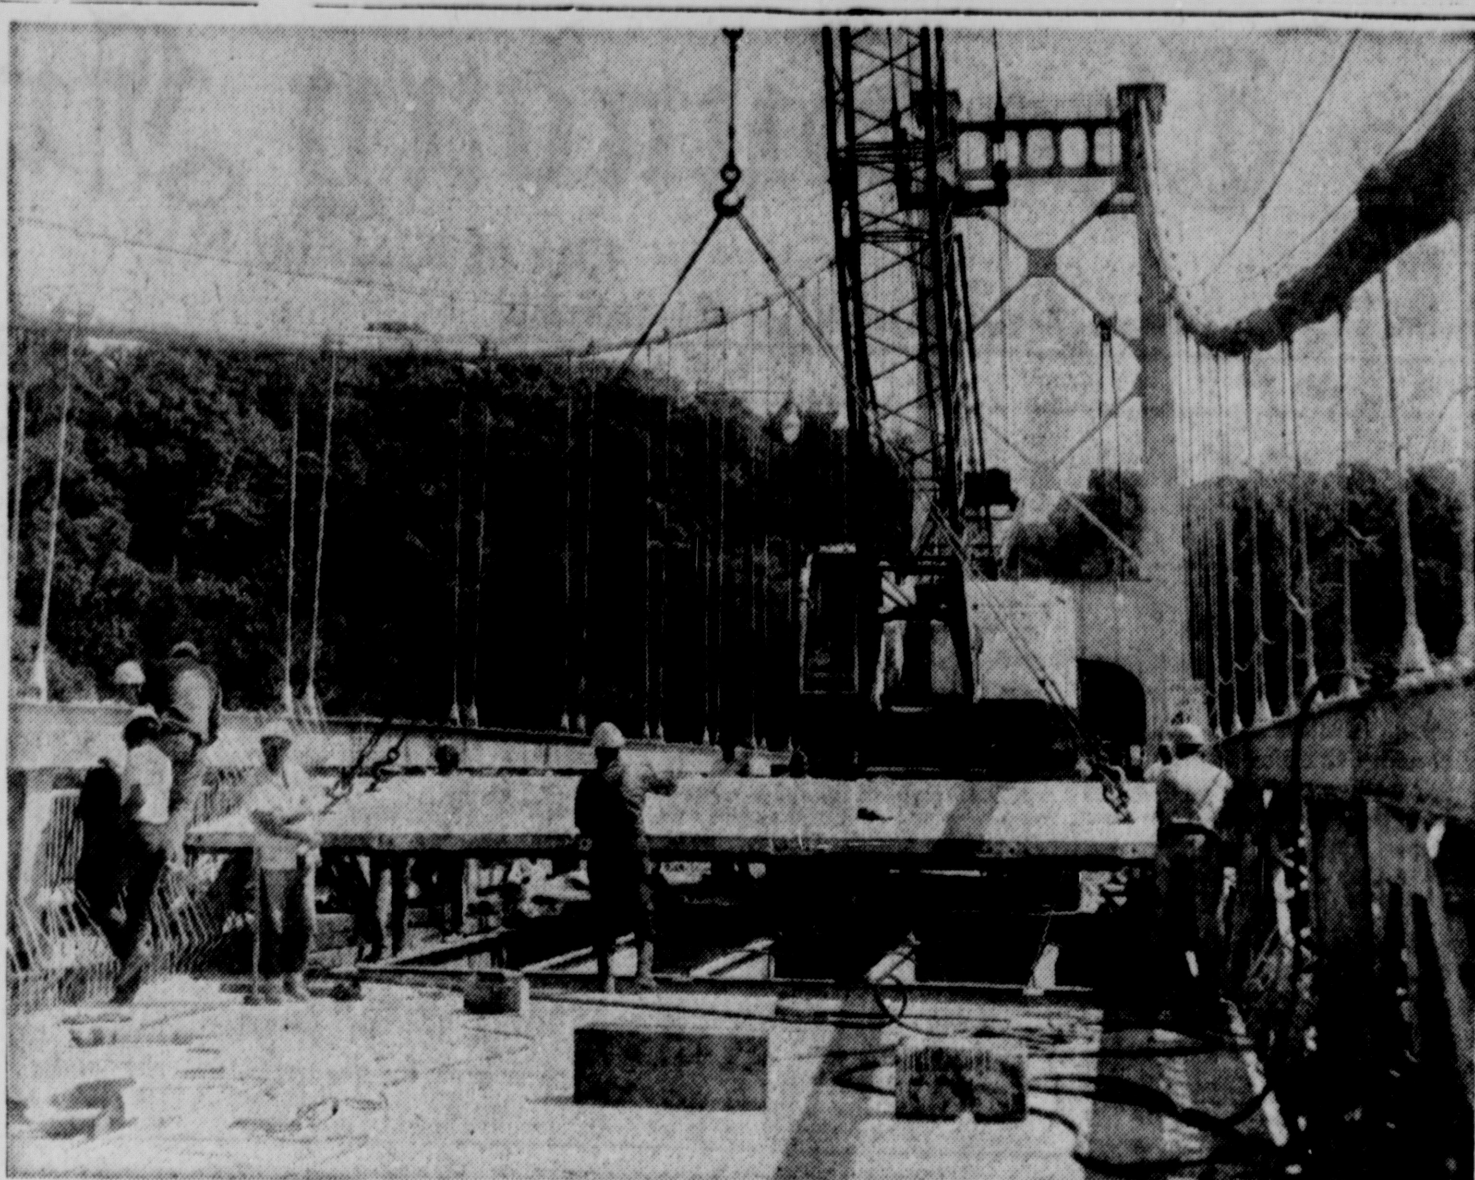

The job involves the complete removal of existing bridge decking and its replacement with pre-cast concrete decking. Apparently, the state has confidence in Kleven's ability to carry out the job, on time. "They have a lot of experience in this field," the spokesman said. "They rebuilt the Brooklyn Bridge, the old Delaware Memorial Bridge and did rehabilitation work on the Stony Point Viaduct."

The spokesman said there have been "just about no complaints" on the detour route which runs from the junction of Broadway and Salem Street in Port Ewen, through Salem

Road and across the Eddyville Bridge back into Kingston. "There's been no accidents of any significance that have caused the state to look at any particular area," the spokesman said.

The start of the bridge work was held up for two weeks because of the detour route, when signal lights planned on Wilbur Avenue and Greenkill Avenue failed to arrive in time. However, the contractor, according to the state, is still obligated to open the bridge on Oct. 25.

Environmental Group Airs 6-Point Project Program

KINGSTON A six-point program of proposed projects and activities for the coming year was revealed at the recent meeting of the Ulster County Environmental Management Council.

The EMC, as the most recently created county agency, is expected to "effectively coordinate environmental matters among all agencies of the county." Under the county legislation the council "will investigate and recommend to the county governing body ecologically sound methods of planning the use of county's resources."

Top priority goes to inventory of natural and man-made resources of the county with an eye to preservation. With this aim in mind, the council will, during the coming year:

- Prepare a preliminary resource status report preparatory to formulating an environmental plan for the county. Included will be indexes of natural resources, open space and historic sites.

- Explore resource recovery and reuse by coordinating volunteer efforts, developing government sponsored efforts and directing research toward the use of solid waste to create energy source or an end product.

- Promote the formation of commissions in the county townships and conduct an interchange of information and ideas among the commissions.

- Develop a flood plan policy for Ulster County.

- Develop a policy in reference to the effects on Ulster County of the proposed expansion of Stewart Airport by the Manhattan Transportation Authority.

- Develop a program of continuing environmental education for Ulster County.

It was noted that close cooperation can effectively reduce the cost of time and energy involved in duplication of study and research. The EMC is especially dependent on services of the planning board, health and highway departments of the county; the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation and the Soil Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Herbert Hekler, director of the planning board and ex-officio member of the EMC. He displayed and explained maps and overlays which will be utilized in council's planned programs.

Olive Democrat in GOP Column

Glemming Gives Details on Shift

OLIVEBRIDGE Olive Town Supervisor James H. Glemming, in the face of what he terms "innuendoes and slanderous statements" from Town Democratic Chairman Kent Reeves, has detailed the circumstances surrounding his April 24, 1972 switch in enrollment to the Republican Party.

Glemming was elected in November of 1971 as a Democrat. He is not seeking reelection on either ticket this fall.

Reeves, contacted by The Freeman, said he was "sort of misquoted" in a reportedly widely circulated article that had Reeves observing Glemming's change in politics along with subsequent town board action that increased Glemming's salary as supervisor by some $2,600. "He changed his politics for no apparent reason," Reeves said "and shortly thereafter the town board voted an increase in salary. I don't know if the two are necessarily connected. I have no proof."

The controversy apparently centers around Glemming's reasons for switching to the Republican team.

Glemming said his relationship with the Democrats "was always stormy. You might say the marriage was never consummated," Glemming said.

Glemming said he was approached by the Democrats in August of 1971 with an offer of their nomination to run for supervisor. "They wanted me to go door to door," Glemming said. "I refused. I consider that an invasion of privacy." Glemming suggested instead that he would hold rallies in various public places in the township. Glemming played the cordvox at his rallies, apparently striking a responsive chord in the electorate. He won by 42 votes.

Glemming, claiming a history of heart conditions, said he worked himself into ill health after assuming office and was advised by his doctor to "slow down," that he was "on the verge of a heart attack."

Glemming said he called a special meeting of the town board for April 13 where he intended to submit his resignation. Oliver Crawford, the town clerk and town Justice Nancy Reisel were absent. Glemming said, and it was decided to postpone the resignation meeting until the full board could be summoned.

In the meantime, word got around the town, Glemming said, and he was approached by many residents "to slow down but stay on the job."

On April 15, Glemming said he went to his office and told his secretary that he had changed his mind and that he would not resign. That night, Glemming said he received a telephone call from Frank McMartin, former town Democratic chairman, who, Glemming said insisted that he resign, otherwise he would be "censured" by the Democratic Committee.

On "about April 18" Glemming said he contacted John Malloy, town Republican chairman, Bradford Kelder, former town GOP chairman (who Glemming said had endorsed him for election in 1971), Howard McIntosh, president of the Town Republican Club and John Nadotti who Glemming described as "a friend and interested citizen" and arranged a meeting at the Stony Hollow Inn in West Hurley. "I told them I wanted to switch and naturally they asked why," Glemming said. He said he then detailed his difficulties with the Democratic party.

Glemming said he also informed the Republican leaders at that meeting that he would not seek reelection in 1973.

Esopus Youth Is Sentenced

PORT EWEN Jeffrey Soura, 18, of P.O. Box 189, Port Ewen, was sentenced to six months in the Ulster County Jail Thursday night after he pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of first degree criminal trespass.

Soura was originally arrested July 23 and charged with third degree burglary after he allegedly entered a vacant home on Canal Street in Port Ewen. The sentence was handed down by Town of Esopus Justice Robert Jordan, who accepted the reduced charge with the consent of the Ulster County District Attorney's Office.

Soura must still face a third degree burglary charge in connection with a burglary at the Port Ewen firehouse on July 31. That case has been adjourned until Sept. 6.

And, Soura was charged with attempted escape when he bolted away from sheriff's deputies while appearing in court to answer the second burglary charge. That charge is still pending.

In each case, the arrest was made by the Ulster County Sheriff's Department.

Silence Not Always Golden on City Hall Matters

On Wednesday, Bill Merrill, GOP candidate for mayor, brought this year's mayoral campaign into sharp focus, raising what will probably be the central issue: confidence in government.

Merrill, prior to his press conference on Wednesday, had been tip-toeing around the issue with such slogans as "slap dash reign at city hall" and "government by crisis" but on Wednesday jumped right on it raising what will may come to be known as "the Watergate thing."

Actually, Merrill was nudged a bit. He wasn't prepared to draw comparisons between what's been going on at the White House and what's been going on at City Hall, specifically, the treasurer's office. He came prepared to discuss his list of 18 questions (two more and he'd have had a heck of a name for a game show), ranging down the list of general interest to "What happened at Colonial Gardens when a baseball backstop is torn down by contractors?"

After the floundering around with barn-burners like that for awhile, one of the media men raised the first of the Watergate questions.

"President Nixon," the fellow said, "has accepted responsibility for Watergate, as chief executive officer in that he is responsible for the actions of his subordinates. Do you think Mayor Koenig should accept responsibility for alleged wrong-doing at the Treasurer's Office? (We are paraphrasing somewhat — those resonant radio voices always put us to sleep — but that's the gist of the question).

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

Merrill's response was not unexpected. Nixon is taking the blame, so should Koenig, said Merrill. Koenig's response to the question, about an hour later, wasn't unexpected either. He had no response.

Soon enough, Watergate raised its ugly head again, with the subject of City Treasurer Tom Lyle's resignation on Aug. 6. One inquisitor noted that the mayor had said the resignation came as a surprise and that he had no idea what the reasons were.

"A lot of people have been asking the same question," Merrill said, the question being if Koenig didn't know the reasons for Lyle's resignation why did he allow him to resign, or if Koenig did know the reasons, why did he say he didn't?

Merrill, speaking carefully, answered the question thusly: "I'm sure Koenig is possibly hiding a little bit here. I don't think he could stand back and say he didn't know the reasons. It (the reason for Lyle's resignation) seems quite obvious. An indictment has been passed down." (Lyle was indicted two weeks later on charges of fraud involving his insurance business).

Merrill, of course, was speaking from hindsight, but he and everyone in that room knew that rumors of pending grand jury action against Lyle were rampant prior to the announcement of resignation and if there's anything that Frank Koenig is good at it's sniffing the wind.

It might be noted, in Koenig's defense, and Merrill implied as much, that at the time of Lyle's resignation, the grand jury was in the process of hearing evidence against him. Such hearings by law are secret as well they should be. Even an indictment, as D.A. Frank Vogt puts it "is only an accusation that must be proven in a court of law."

Merrill is implying, however, that Koenig knew and responded to a direct question with "I don't know." The more candid answer, considering the circumstances, might have been: "I am aware of the nature of Mr. Lyle's personal problems. I am sure they have no connection with his duties in the treasurer's office (as Lyle said in his letter of resignation) and I am not at liberty to discuss them at this point."

It's true that in past campaigns, Koenig's silence on the issues, or rather his refusal to respond to attack, has proven golden. But we think there's more involved here than just winning an election, previous "game plans" notwithstanding. There is a mistrust of government abroad, a crisis of confidence, if you will, and stubborn silence in the face of legitimate questions, does nothing to alleviate it.

It's Back to Class Wednesday

By DON TREAT

KINGSTON The day students have been dreading all summer is fast approaching. School starts Wednesday, Sept. 5.

To make the transition from the summer freedom back into the school room less demanding, several of the area's superintendents have declared half-days for openers. Some have even scheduled two or more half-days to begin the grind.

Students attending Kingston High School and the three junior highs in the consolidated district are among those blessed with early dismissal on Wednesday. Elementary pupils must serve out the entire day, however.

There will be no reprieve on Thursday when a full day is scheduled for all. Details on reporting times and places for the first day have already appeared in The Freeman.

"We in this district are looking forward to another successful year academically and the district will be on firm ground financially," Superintendent Louis Salzman said.

Sister Catherine Gormley, principal of John A. Coleman High School, has announced that all students should report Wednesday for a partial day from 8:25 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Freshman and seniors will be in session Thursday and sophomores and juniors Friday during the same time period. A full day of classes will be held on the following Monday.

"Our enrollment is up to 530," reported Sister Gormley, "which is a significant increase over past years."

The Automobile Club of New York recently kicked off its annual fall traffic safety campaign in Kingston with Mayor Francis R. Koenig being presented with the first "School's Open — Drive Carefully" poster.

Members of the Kingston

Police Department are lending their support to this important program aimed at safeguarding children. The black and orange posters will be mounted by police at major intersections and school crossings in Kingston during September and October to alert motorists of the need for extra driving care as thousands of local youngsters begin their new school term.

In Saugerties, students are faced with a full day of classes Wednesday. Teachers meet the day before to prepare for the onslaught and outline strategy for the year.

Superintendent Dr. Dexter O. Arnold urges parents who have youngsters attending school for the first time to put tags with name and address on their children to avoid transportation problems.

"I'm looking forward to the opening of school after the hectic situation we had with the budget," Dr. Arnold said. "We have made an effort to get supplies here in time for opening day."

Saugerties' budget was voted down twice before being passed to avert an austerity program. No supplies could be ordered until voters gave the ok.

Rondout Valley Central Schools will follow the same format as Saugerties. Teachers workshops are scheduled for Tuesday and a full day of classes is on tap Wednesday.

Superintendent Robert A. Robertaccio would like to see the entire community get involved in school matters this year.

"I hope to get significant feedback from everyone on what they feel the school should be doing," he said.

No mercy has been shown on Ontario Central Schools pupils either: regular school hours will be observed on Wednesday. Orientation for seventh graders at the junior high and kindergarten at the elementary schools will take place Tuesday, as reported in the Freeman last week.

New Paltz will go on a partial schedule Wednesday. Opening day information was carried in The Freeman last week, along with the new regular school hours.

Harold T. Bowers, New Paltz police chief, has announced that his department will be participating in the Automobile Club's safety campaign.

"Hundreds of children will be walking to and from school, many for the first time," reminded Chief Bowers. "Motorists should be especially careful when driving in school areas and near parks and playgrounds."

Bowers also called special attention to the New York State law that requires all vehicles to stop when meeting or overtaking a school bus stopped with its flashing red lights indicating that the driver is picking up or discharging for a full day Wednesday on the regular time schedule.

The following schedule will be in effect during the first week of school in Red Hook:

Mill Road Primary School (K-3) — Wednesday 8:45 a.m.-1:45 p.m.; Thursday — 8:45-2 and Friday — 8:45-2:15. The regular 2:20 dismissal time will go into effect the following Monday.

Mill Road Primary School (4-6) — Wednesday 8:45-1:30; Thursday 8:45-1:45 and Friday 8:45-2. The regular 2:05 dismissal time will go into effect the following Monday.

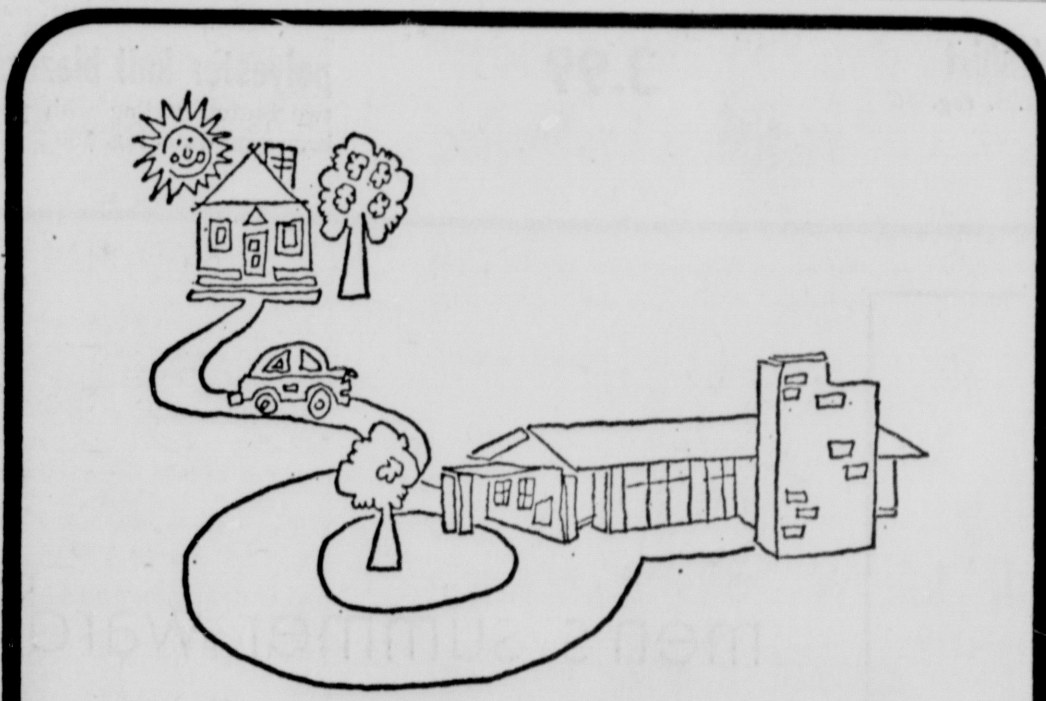

Students in grades 7-9 should report to Kinder Junior High School no later than 8 a.m., while students in grades 10-12 should report to the high school at the same time. Dismissal in grades 7-12 will be at 2:50 p.m.

Bus routes and time schedules will be approximately the same as last year. Rhinebeck Schools will open definitely on the way back.

There will be an orientation program for incoming seventh graders on Tuesday from 9-10 a.m. Faculty orientation will take place Tuesday for Highland Central School's teachers. Regular classes will begin Wednesday.

Half-day sessions will be conducted Wednesday and Thursday at Ellenville Schools. Elementary Schools will report at 8:15 a.m. and junior and senior high pupils at 8:20. No normal kindergarten classes will take place, as parents and children will meet with teachers from 9 a.m. to noon on Wednesday and Thursday, depending on morning or afternoon session designation.

Yes, school days are definitely on the way back.

The Gallup Poll

Agnew's Support Declines

By GEORGE GALLUP
(Copyright 1973, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J.
Vice President Spiro Agnew has lost considerable support with Republican voters for the GOP presidential nomination in 1976, as determined by a nationwide Gallup Poll conducted following the recent disclosure of an investigation into Agnew's financial dealings.

In the latest survey, Agnew is picked by 22 per cent of Republican voters from a list of 10 men who have been prominently mentioned as possible GOP candidates for 1976, and is now in a tie for first place with Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

In April, Agnew dominated the field and was the choice of 35 per cent of Republicans who were asked to choose from the same list of 10 men. Next was Reagan, with 20 per cent of the vote.

In the latest test, Agnew and Reagan are followed in the voting by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York with 13 per cent. In fourth place is Sen. Howard Baker, who has gained national prominence as a member of the Senate Watergate hearings. Baker's vote among Republicans has shot up from one per cent in April to 11 per cent in the latest survey.

Next in the standings are former Treasury Secretary John Connally with 10 per cent and Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois with seven per cent. None of the other four men on the list currently receives more than three per cent of the vote.

Persons in the latest Gallup survey who classified themselves as Republicans were asked this question:

"Here is a list of people who have been mentioned as possible presidential candidates for the Republican party in 1976. Which one would you like to see nominated as the Republican candidate for President in 1976?"

The following question was asked next:

"Is there any person not on the list whom you would like to see as Republican candidate in 1976?"

None of the persons named in response to this question receives more than 1 per cent of the vote.

The criminal investigation involving the Vice President was brought to light publicly on Aug. 6. Agnew has been accused of participating in a plan in which contractors receiving state jobs gave kickbacks to him while he was governor of Maryland. Agnew has subsequently denied such involvement.

Disclosure that Agnew was under investigation by a federal grand jury has caused considerable speculation regarding his political future. To measure the impact on the GOP political scene if Agnew were to decide not to run 1976 — or were precluded from doing so — all Republicans in the survey who chose Agnew were asked which of the men on the list would be their second choice.

The findings show nearly half of Agnew's support (47 per cent) going to another conservative Republican, Gov. Reagan. Here is the new lineup, with the Agnew vote distributed to the other men:

1976 CHOICES WITH AGNEW EXCLUDED

	Pct.
Ronald Reagan	32
Nelson Rockefeller	16
Howard Baker	12
John Connally	12
Charles Percy	8
James Buckley	5
Edward Brooke	5
William Brock	1
Daniel Evans	1
Don't know/no answer	11

Further analysis indicates that, while Agnew has suffered a sharp drop in support for the GOP nomination, his personal appeal among Republicans remains little changed.

To measure the degree of Agnew's personal appeal among GOP voters, a 10-point attitude scale, called the Stapel Scalometer, was employed.

Here are the latest results compared with those from the previous survey which was conducted in early August just prior to the public disclosure of the probe into Agnew's financial dealings.

PERSONAL APPEAL OF AGNEW

	Latest Pct.	Early Aug. Pct.
Highly favorable	28	31
Mildly favorable	55	49
Mildly unfavorable	10	13
Highly unfavorable	4	3

The latest findings are based on in-person interviews with a total of 328 persons classifying themselves as Republicans out of a total sample of 1,311 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in more than 250 scientifically selected localities during the period August 17-20.

Freeman Readers Write the Editor

Aaron's Feat

Editor, The Freeman:
Recently, your paper ran an article written by Mr. Fred Dorn, UPI Sports writer, entitled, "Even After Aaron Breaks the Home Run Record, The Legend of Babe Ruth Will Never Die."
I can understand why Mr. Dorn wrote the article, because, he, like so many others of the "old line" still live in the reverence of the "Babe," and now another individual seemingly is about to shatter the idolatry of their hero. However, since Henry Aaron has not as yet surpassed Ruth's home run record, I think that he probably should have withheld his article until after the fact. It is my opinion that the article, written at this time merely accelerates more diatribe and hatred toward Aaron, principally because he is a black man.
Mr. Dorn goes on to try and substantiate his position by quoting a list of statistics, which really are immaterial to why one athlete subsequently breaks a record held by another.

The "Babe" is a legendary within his own right, and will ever remain so. For example: The fact that Roger Maris hit 61 home runs several years ago has in no way diminished the image of Ruth. Anyone who has visited the Baseball "Hall of Fame" at Cooperstown, N.Y., will immediately note that the "Babe" has a special niche of his own.
If Henry Aaron does surpass Ruth's home run record, I hope that Mr. Dorn will write another column, in which he will reveal how a Black American from his native state of Alabama first started a baseball career. He should also specify to some of the desolate, wretched and miserable fields, where black boys were relegated and forced to use, if they wanted to indulge in most any type of athletics. He should further outline the "third handed" equipment or "home made" equipment that these lads used.

Additionally included in such article, should be details reflecting the courage and tenacity reflected by all black athletes in their struggle to participate in professional sports. In this respect, Babe Ruth did not have to compete with Henry Aaron because of the color of skin.
Babe Ruth will ever remain a legendary figure. His contributions to baseball are innumerable. However, time passes on and other heroes arrive on the scene. Without such circumstances, there would be no progress in this world.
Henry Aaron is a fine American. His courage and integrity ranks with any sports figure, living or deceased. I am proud to call him a brother American, and am justly honored to have lived to see his accomplishments.
HUMPHREY B. JONES

Defends 'Y'

Editor, The Freeman:
The following is a copy of a letter I have just written to Mr. Redenberg of the United Way.
Dear Sir:
Hurrah for Laura Rethier! She expresses my sentiments exactly. Although the lack of my contribution to the United Way will hardly embarrass you, as of necessity it would be small, I want to register my disapproval of your release through the Freeman, of such an outrageous and totally uncalled for chastisement of the YWCA.
I hope more people will see fit to let you know what an appalling mistake you have made, and to urge you to correct it.

Irate Still

Editor, The Freeman:
A little over 4 months ago an organization called "IRATE HOUSEWIVES" was formed in order to do something about the rising prices of consumer goods. We were angry then and we are even angrier now, because the plight of the consumer in this country is being ignored.
According to all published news facts, Phase 4 promises greater inflation to come because of past and continued mismanagement of the economy by our government. When we led the successful meat boycott in Ulster County last April we thought that the simple laws of supply and demand determined prices. Now we can afford to buy less and less and prices are still rising. We find that our supply of feed grain was sold to Russia at a cost to the consumer of $333 million in agriculture subsidies plus depleting our supply for home consumption. This started off a price spiral affecting meat, dairy products and baked goods. We subsidize farmers to grow less and keep land idle to keep down food production instead of subsidizing to grow and produce more. We are asked to accept an ever increasing cost of living on our present incomes at a time when corporate profits are at peak levels and the giant monopolies have control. This we can no longer tolerate no ifs, ands or Butz (he's gotta go).

During our short existence, we have accomplished many things in addition to learning much about our economy and the workings of our government. We formed ties with groups across the state and now these combined groups are planning a march on Washington in the future. We have formed a steering committee of people all over Ulster County to exchange information and coordinate our activities. We have taken an active part on consumer issues such as fuel supplies for independents, State legislators salaries and making our plight known to our local and federal representatives.

We urge everyone to write to his Congressman, Senator, President and local newspaper today stating how inflation is hurting you.
Remember your power at the polls and let your elected officials know you hold them accountable.
Instead of panic buying or hoarding scarce commodities buy directly from farmers and organize with your neighbors to buy cooperatively. We are looking into this and will keep you informed on the details of organizing food co ops.
We plan public meetings and further activities in early September and pledge to continue our efforts on the consumer's behalf. For further information, suggestions and help etc. call 382 1264 or 657 6236.

Notice Given

Editor, The Freeman:
The Kingston Municipal Civil Service Commission does not set the date for examinations to be held for Police Department, which is the impression Hugh Reynolds gave in his little "innuendo" in Sunday's paper.
The State Civil Service Department sends us a schedule of when these exams are to be held and we order as many as we have applicants who have applied for and been approved by the Civil Service Commission.
We send Mr. Reynolds and the radio stations notices of when these tests are held as we feel it is of interest to the public.
Mr. Merrill's speech about needing more police had no influence on this test being held.
Very truly yours,
MRS. MARTIN KELLER
President, Civil Service

ZOO CONDITIONS

Editor, The Freeman:
My wife and I have recently been visiting with my wife's parents who reside not far from the city of Kingston. On Monday, August 20th, my wife, her sister, and I visited the Forsyth Park Zoo. What we observed during this visit is what prompted the writing of this letter, for conditions at the zoo are neither what they could be, or should be.
To begin at the least harmful level, only four of the species of animals on display are marked with any sort of identification, these being the black bear, the llama, the yak and the raccoon. A zoo is an educational experience aimed primarily at children, and this absence of markers would seem a bit curious, if not downright negligent. As will become evident, I suspect the latter.
For instance, we observed an abundance of litter during our visit, on the grounds and in and above, caught in the wire mesh in the areas in which the animals were contained. For another, a number of animals had water in their area, but the water did not appear to have been changed in days. Finally, the cages in which some of the smaller animals are kept had not been cleaned in a while.

Perhaps even more serious than this evidence of caretaking negligence is the fact that some of the animals in this zoo are confined in areas not ideally suited to their needs. As an example, there is a large monkey, about five or six feet from tail tip to the top of the head, which is housed in a cage about four by seven feet, furnished only with an old dead branch. The bear is in a concrete cage not high enough for him to stand up in and with not even an old log for scratching his back. And there are a number of herbivorous animals in all-dirt or concrete floor areas. One poor little animal next to the raccoon has gone so far as to scrape all the grass within reach from the raccoon cage into his own, and still futilely reaches for more.

Now I suppose none of this would have upset my wife and sister-in-law and myself as much as it did if we had seen somebody there working hard to keep up on things, for as you will note, much of what I have mentioned is due simply to poor zoo-keeping and nothing more. But as it was, we saw two or three fellows hanging around the front gate listening to the radio, chatting and watching the women walk by. In fact, the three-quarters of an hour that we were there, not one of these men did a lick of work!
In other words, the animals at the zoo are not being properly cared for, and I sincerely hope you will take action to correct this situation. A zoo is a lot like a home of a human being, — if it is not kept up, it is not healthy or safe to live in, and not many people will care to visit.
Sincerely,
MARK WURZBACHER

Poor Coverage

Editor, The Freeman:
I am surprised every year at the shoddy treatment afforded the Ulster County Fair by the Freeman. The county fair has a beautiful location now and has come a long way since the pathetic beginnings at Forsyth Park. To read our newspaper one would never know such a transformation has taken place.
Every year hundreds of children and adults work to present a fair to surpass the preceding year. There is no acknowledgement or encouragement for these efforts in the local press coverage. The Dutchess Fair gets good coverage every year by the Freeman while most Ulster County residents are not even aware of the events offered by our fair which is free. A published fair schedule would be very helpful in this respect. As the voice of Ulster County, The Freeman should provide coverage of the fair at least equal to the two page spread accorded one day library fairs. The county fair had four pictures spread over a three day period.

The continual improvement of facilities and activities depends in part on the support given by interested people in the community. The sheep exhibition improves every year and includes flocks from other counties. The 4H exhibit expands continually and featured a rock garden complete with waterfall this year. The Grange always has eye catching exhibits. There was also a balloon race this year featuring three enormous beautiful hot air balloons. There are many more family oriented features.

Instead of merely reporting the attendance as being down because of weather — Friday was the only rainy day in New Paltz. Why not write about the people who do go and why they feel it is worth all the time invested? What a wonderful opportunity for the Daily Freeman to exert influence in promoting Ulster County and in providing indispensable communication for the people of this area! Why not give it a try next time?
Sincerely,
CHARLOTTE ELANDER
Saugerties

National Integrity

Editor, The Freeman:
It's definition is moral soundness, or unimpaired state, purity, honesty and uncorruption because it comprehends the whole moral character of individuals.
What needs to be said to the American people with regard to recent revelations in our national capital?
A feeling of disillusion over the administration of political leaders has settled upon us, and the democratic system has betrayed us as we observe leadership caught in a tangled web of wrong doing.
We wonder if the Constitution is at fault, the church, the educational system or the age of permissiveness, arrogance and complacency.
Let the power of positive thinking be stimulated in thoughts that there are and always will be good people functioning in the integrity of government as our founding fathers intended

Let us understand that throughout all human history the quest for power predominates without responsibility — as Hitler and Mussolini and Castro.
Nothing has really changed. We have just been stimulated to open our eyes to the fact that our electors and appointees need moral regeneration and integrity.
The Washington, DC revelations of the past few weeks disclose that no one really thought of any wrong doing because their conscience was evidently in short supply.

Lessons of religious training in childhood, if heeded, could have saved America great embarrassment before the nations of the world.
The security of America lies not in destructive weapons for defense, technology, election returns, but in the integrity of its citizens with emphasis upon the responsibilities incumbent in all levels of government by political leaders.
Sincerely yours,
EDWIN J HIGBY
Kingston, NY

To my many Friends:
I wish to take this opportunity to thank everyone who came out to vote for me at the Marbletown Republican Caucus.
I would also like to point out that this situation has made a perfect example of not taking anything for granted

Anytime in the future if you should feel that your one vote cannot make a difference, please keep in mind I lost by six votes.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 2, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON
and
LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has subtly informed the regulators he picks to protect consumers that he is far more concerned about their loyalty to him than he is about their freedom of judgment.

So outraged was one honest appointee that, even though he was handpicked by the White House, he went to his Democratic senator to complain he had been leaned on.

Agencies like the Federal Power Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Federal Communications Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission are among the least romantic sounding offices in town.

But to the consumer, they mean a safe-or-unsafe air flight, fair-or-foul ads, good-or-bad TV, higher-or-lower utility rates and clean-or-dirty food. Even though their members are presidential appointees, they are supposed to act independently of the White House. Several months ago, concerned over too much Democratic type thinking by his regulators and administrators, Nixon had his then chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, send a private memo to all new appointees. A copy of the terse memo has reached us. Attached was a column by pro-Nixon writer Ray Cromley, which Haldeman says "The President has read and feels it's important that you have a copy."

The column so endorsed by the President says, "A relatively small group of willful men scattered in key positions through the government have for almost four years actively sabotaged the programs sponsored by their President." It goes on to say that "the President now aims at weeding out" these dissenters.

Haldeman, still quoting the President's views, said Nixon wanted the regulators and other appointees to read the column "so that you will thoroughly understand the basis for (Nixon's) concerns regarding the necessity of avoiding having his policies sabotaged by holdovers in the bureaucracy."

Then, like a grammar school teacher admonishing an eraser-throwing child, Haldeman said, "It is, of course, your responsibility to see that this doesn't happen."

LETTER TO TUNNEY

One of the many appointees to get this "loyalty package" was Robert Morris, a San Francisco attorney picked to fill a slot at the Federal Power Commission, now dealing with the energy crisis.

Though Morris was later turned down by the Senate for his pro-industry background, he was so incensed by the Nixon-Haldeman lecture that he wrote to his senator, John Tunney.

"I leave it to your calmer head," Morris wrote Tunney, "to determine whether the essential message — especially the strong fatherly advice of the final sentence of the memorandum — is not: 'Brother, you may think you're being appointed to an independent agency, but don't think for a minute that you're independent.'"

FOOTNOTE: Robert Morris was vacationing in the California mountains when he tried to reach him. H. R. Haldeman, through his attorney John J. Wilson, told our associate Joseph Spear that the memo was "authentic and routinely sent to every nominee at the direction of the President."

BLINKING BAR: The Inter-American Bar Association, which was set up in 1940 to "promote the Rule of Law," held its 1973 conference last month in Brazil where a military dictatorship is the "rule of law."

Although torture now rivals coffee as Brazil's most famous product, the famed lawyers from throughout the Western hemisphere made no mention of Brazil's official repression in their formal talks. They lolled on Rio de Janeiro beaches and imbibed at its push private clubs virtually within hearing range of the victims of official torture.

As to torture, amiable John Dahlgren, the association's secretary general, told us, "We have no proof of anything like that." Anyway, he added, not a single member of the association protested the site of the meeting.

PEARL HARBOR FLAP: Dushko Popov, a Yugoslav-born British agent who pretended to serve Nazi Germany in World War II, claims he personally warned J. Edgar Hoover in 1941 of "exactly where, when, how and by whom (the U.S.) is going to be attacked."

In the October "True" magazine, Popov will say Hoover "turned purple" and angrily rebuffed him and his warning on Pearl Harbor. Five years later, writes Popov, he had a second personal argument with Hoover over who told the Allies of the "microdot," a tiny piece of film which was affixed by Nazi spies as a "period" in letters but actually could be enlarged into long messages.

Popov says he insisted Hoover was trying to steal credit from him and give it to FBI agents. This time, said Popov, Hoover backed down.

Although Popov's tale is more than 30 years old, it may set off another FBI fracas. An FBI spokesman, after searching FBI data, told us flatly that "Hoover never met Popov."

Whatever Happened to Fun

This is the third and final column by Mr. Ryskind, a Pulitzer Prize winner, substituting for Mr. Buckley, who is on vacation.

By MORRIS RYSKIND
Frequently readers write — usually indignantly — asking me to comment on some current play or film they find objectionable. But nowadays I rarely see either, though I achieved at least a modicum of success as a writer in both fields. Not that I ever led the league in home runs, so to speak, but I managed a fair batting average.

I was born in New York, and in those days the theatre — like the movies and vaudeville — was priced low enough for most families to attend once in a while. And it was always an occasion eagerly anticipated.

So that, even after moving to Hollywood, we made it a point, on our annual visit back East, to see half-a-dozen shows. And often we'd go backstage afterward to renew old friendships with the cast, the author, and the stage crew.

But some 15 years ago, we decided we'd had it, for somewhere along the line the fun had disappeared. Even had we known the authors, we had no desire to meet them. We were used to folks coming out of a show, smiling and happy and, in the case of a musical, humming the catchy tunes of Berlin, Kern, Gershwin and Rodgers. Now they — and we — emerged, glum and dubious. And at the prices, who needed that?

The plots were often puzzling. And the characters may have been "meaningful" and "relevant" to the new crop of critics — but not to us. No longer, as of yore, could we identify with them. The old "stereotypes" of family life were passe, and the brave, new writers gave us a truer picture: The parents cheated on each other, and their progeny were either homosexuals or drug addicts — or both. And even the movies had changed. No longer did boy meet girl and finally win her — boy was far too busy chasing the other boys.

But the other night we saw a movie we liked on TV. We had seen it before (in 1953) but it still held up: "Casablanca," with Ingrid Bergman, Humphrey Bogart, Claude Rains, Sidney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre. And there was a great song, too, "As Time Goes By." In the end, virtue prevailed — and if that's camp, the entertainment world should go camping again.

And in the same week, we went to a birthday party for Jack Haley, famed as the "Tin Man" in the "Wizard of Oz," and known to stage buffs for his cavorting in such musical comedies as "Good News" and "Follow Through." Some gossip-monger said it was his umpteenth birthday, a palpable lie, since Jack looks just the same as he did 35 years ago.

It proved to be a typical Hollywood orgy — but not the kind that makes the scandal columns. Jack's long-time friends were there to wish him well and reminisce of the olden days when the world was somewhat kinder. Among them were the eternally youthful Jack Benny, George Burns, film producer Eddie Buzzell, who, like Haley, began on the Broadway musical stage, the famed Gene Kelly and Portland Allen, wife of the inimitable Fred, whose "feud" with Benny enriched the days of radio and early TV.

It is always — to me, at least — glorious fun when actors get together and recount some of their earlier experiences, and George Burns, as usual, would insert a quip that had us all rolling in the aisles.

But the piece de resistance came when Jack Haley, Jr. — now a producer — pulled down the screen and showed us a film made up of clippings from early (roughly, 1950) TV. It is entitled "The Great Re-Run," and it was assembled by the Television Academy. If it is ever publicly shown, drop whatever you're doing and rush to see it.

Seldom have I heard such belly-laughs. I can't begin to list all the performers, but they were the creme de la creme of that period. Here were Benny, Burns and Allen, Danny Thomas, Sinatra, Milton Berle, Martin and Lewis, Red Skelton, Abbott and Costello, Jackie Gleason and Art Carney and even, in a rare moment of nonsense, that superb actor, Cedric Hardwicke — all at their very best. And what a wondrous best that was! Not a "relevant" message in the entire carload.

And, recalling it, I wonder whatever happened to fun — good, clean fun? It was a saving grace in the entertainment world and maybe we should, in the name of ecology, try to restore it by staking out areas where it could be kept free from the polluters whose filth threatens to destroy it utterly.

Inside Report

Kissinger Faces Hard Time

By ROWLAND EVANS
and

WASHINGTON — Although eventual Senate confirmation of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger as Secretary of State is not in doubt, President Nixon's ace diplomatic operative is going to be pressed hard on the secret U.S. bombing of Cambodia in 1969 when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee starts its hearings Sept. 7.

The fact that President Nixon, in his Aug. 20 speech at New Orleans, took full responsibility for the Cambodian bombing decision was not in the slightest diminished the senatorial appetite for a full-scale expose of how the decision was made and whether Kissinger himself will be able to justify it.

One reason: even Senators completely committed to confirming Kissinger are troubled by his future dual role as Secretary of State and also as the President's White House foreign policy advisor, in charge of the National Security Council staff.

Their question: will Kissinger give them the full background of the March 1969 decision to bomb Cambodia or will he claim executive privilege on grounds of his confidential relationship with the President? If the latter, Kissinger will risk raising senatorial hackles at a time when congressional suspicion of presidential power and secrecy has reached its high point of at least the last 50 years.

Moreover, what gives the Cambodian issue special spice is the fact that high officials now in the Defense Department, most particularly Deputy Secretary William P. Clements, left the impression with the Senate Armed Services Committee and the nation on Aug. 9 that the orders to falsify bombing reports in order to maintain total security had emanated from the Pentagon.

Clements, in fact, actually produced a now widely published document authorizing 14 B-52 strikes into Cambodian border areas adjacent to South Vietnam on the nights of Nov. 24-25 and Nov. 29-30, 1969. The document, which Clements indicated was the only one he could find in Pentagon files on the Cambodian bombing, bore the signature of Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, then chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the initials "MRL" for Melvin R. Laird, the then Secretary of Defense. It was marked "top secret — eyes only" and dated Nov. 20.

So astonished was Democratic Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, acting chairman of the committee, when Clements produced this document that he telephoned Laird in Chicago (where he was addressing the National Legislative Conference) and warned him: Mel, they're trying to do you in up here.

As a former Air Force Secretary, Symington knew neither Gen. Wheeler nor Laird had authority to falsify bombing reports. Only the President himself could order an official cover-up of bombing operations against a neutral nation, together with the falsification of reports essential to make the cover-up work.

At the White House itself, the disclosure by Clements was received with amazement and chagrin. Clements' decision to finger Laird as chief villain in the hunt for Cambodian scapegoats was not appreciated, even though some cynics at first thought that Clements must have had White House authorization before producing the "top secret — eyes only" memorandum.

In fact, he had none at all. Clements, an aggressive Texan who had hoped to be named Deputy Defense Secretary in 1969 (Laird chose David Packard instead), was operating on his own and apparently without the support of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Thus, the key document justifying the secret bombing policy was written not on Nov. 20, 1969, the date of Clements' memorandum, but the previous March 16 — just before the secret bombing started.

It spelled out the entire "press guidance" secrecy policy for the military to follow. One copy of this key document, obviously top secret and with limited distribution, is in the Joint Chiefs' files. However, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, present chairman of the Joint Chiefs who was testifying with Clements Aug. 9, the day Clements disclosed the Wheeler-Laird memorandum, did not give Clements the Joint Chiefs' own record.

The real push for the Cambodian secrecy policy in 1969 came not from Laird and Wheeler but from the diplomats — the State Department and Kissinger — who knew that disclosure would gravely compromise the then Cambodian government of Prince Sihanouk.

The Senate will insist on all the intimate details from Kissinger. If he refuses them, his transition to the No. 1 cabinet post will have some rocky spots.

No Smoking

Robert Yoakum

The day I decided to give up cigarettes (not the day I did give up cigarettes; that came many years later) was just like any other day (actually it was night) on the Herald-Tribune in Paris:

The 10:15 deadline was looming; typewriters were picking up speed; copy editors' pencils were ruthlessly eviscerating our prose; horseplay had ceased; and the crepuscular carcinogenic air was heavy with smoke from the cigarettes of all nations.

Coast Guard's New Personnel Need Lodgings

United States Coast Guard personnel at the Saugerties station have noted that three of their new crew members are looking for lodgings in the Saugerties area.

Coast Guard officials said a three bedroom house in the immediate Saugerties area is needed. It would be leased by the Coast Guard for one year. The approximate $300 monthly rent should include all utilities.

Persons who have information on appropriate accommodations for the Coast Guard crew members should contact the Saugerties Coast Guard station as soon as possible.

We didn't suspect back then, in the late 1940s and early 1950s, that cigarette smoke might someday be officially labeled a Hazardous Substance. I did suspect, though, after the second or third pack each day, that the messages sent to my brain from my pharynx, trachea, bronchi, and lungs might well be distress signals.

So I said to myself, "I'll taper off. I'm a compulsive smoker, and my system might not be able to stand the shock of sudden abstinence." Besides, other people who had quit abruptly weren't as busy or as sensitive as I was.

So I tried eliminating one cigarette a day. That pace proved too fast. I then cut one cigarette every third day. That program also broke down. Then I tried cutting out one a week.

Months later I was still devising new formulas. I tried smoking one an hour. I tried smoking only after meals, while working, or during social events. I tried making pacts with friends. I tried smoking repulsive-tasting cigarettes.

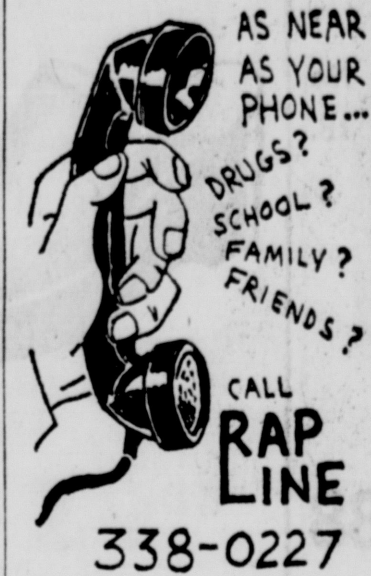

Months merged into years. I was still at it. Somewhere along the long, long trail I decided that tapering off wouldn't work. So, during the late 1950s and early 1960s, I gave up altogether — time after time. I would say, "Giving up smoking is easy; I've done it a thousand times."

Then I would laugh a hollow laugh — and cough.

The problem was finding the right time to quit. I gave up during vacations, for example, on the theory that my delicate system would have a quiet period in which to readjust. But then someone would say something that upset me and I would begin smoking again out of anger. Or I would decide that my vacation was being ruined by my effort to quit, and resolve to give up as soon as the vacation was over.

To soften the impact of abstinence I would light other people's cigarettes, taking a puff or two in the process. Or I would sneak off to the bathroom for a quick smoke, fearful that family or friends wouldn't understand my need to have just one more cigarette to get over the hump.

Finally, in the autumn of 1963, I made it. Someone told me, "Every time you feel the need for a cigarette, put a cigarette holder in your mouth." I did,

Ramada Inn . . Air Guests

KINGSTON — How many motels in Kingston (or anywhere) can claim that their first guests arrived by helicopter? The Ramada Inn at Route 28 by Thruway Exit 19 can.

Officials from the Bell Helicopter company touched down at the new inn shortly after it opened Thursday, August 23. They stayed at the Ramada while visiting the Dutchess County Fair in Rhinebeck.

Although some finishing touches are still needed at the 100-room motel, General Manager Addison Stacy has opened the doors and already had a full house during the first weekend of operation.

Besides rooms decorated in blue, green or orange with color TV and optional steambaths, Ramada Inn features a tropical pool which will be given a dome in October and be open year round.

Ramada's famed Steak & Brew Restaurant and Lounge will open in October and Stacy feels this will add a new dimension to dining in the area. In the meantime, guests are being served a complimentary "petite" breakfast in the Hendrick Hudson Ballroom. "Steak and Brew has been extremely popular everywhere we've tried it and Kingston should be no exception," said Stacy of the restaurant that will seat up to 300 people.

The ballroom will be available for big affairs approaching 200 people, while the Rip Van Winkle, Clairmont and Robert Fulton rooms will provide the "perfect setting for intimate special occasions."

Live entertainment will be featured in the cocktail lounge nightly and Stacy is working on plans to make Ramada a skiers paradise when winter rolls around.

"Kingston is a fantastic place and I'm happy to be here," said Stacy, a native of Missouri. "Everyone from the Chamber of Commerce to just nice people coming around to say hello have been very friendly."

Stacy called Kingston a "traveling town," as he noted several local residents had come to make advance reservations at other Ramada Inns.

"New York State is becoming an increasingly popular vacation spot according to surveys," he added, "and this area is really on the move."

Rhinebeck's T&T Ford Moving

RHINEBECK — The business story of T&T Ford is 52 years old, and a new chapter will unfold in November when the company's headquarters move to newly-constructed facilities just south of Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge on Route 9G.

Capitol Valley Contractors of Germantown will put up the new pre-engineered steel building with a brick showroom and office area. Excavation was begun in July by J.D. Von der Leith and Sons of Rhinebeck.

Stanton Tremper, T&T proprietor, said the new location on 9G between the bridge approach and the Route 9 traffic light was selected to offer centralized service to the Red Hook-Rhinebeck area; to provide customers easy entry from highway and plenty of parking space; and to provide the display of a larger and greater variety of new and used vehicles.

A used car lot is presently maintained on Route 9 across from the Dutchess County Fairgrounds.

He also noted that the parts stock area will be about four times larger than at present and expanded services will include daily car rentals, vehicle leasing, recreation vehicles, truck sales and service areas, loaner car for service customers, a customer lounge, and extra checks on new vehicles.

The "grand-daddy" of the present T&T Ford was founded in 1921 by two brothers, Stanton and Harold Tremper, in Pine Plains.

The material for their original building was local field stone obtained by going to surrounding farmers' fields, loading stones on a Ford Model T dump truck, and carrying them back to Pine Plains. This dealership was later sold to two employees and is now occupied by a Ford dealership, Pine Plains Garage.

In 1924 Stanton Tremper organized another dealership, Central Auto Sales in Red Hook, which continued until 1970 when the Ford Motor Company consolidated the Red Hook Rhinebeck agencies.

Brothers Harold, Leonard, and Stanton, together with their father Pascal Tremper, organized another Ford dealership in Rhinebeck in 1929.

They purchased a building on West Market Street to be the home for T&T Auto Sales.

The name of this business, still at the same site, was recently changed to T&T Ford.

Inc. and is operated by Stanton Tremper, his wife Kathryn, and their son, Stan Jr.

Thus the dealership, which has been a family proposition for almost as long as the Ford family's appears to be headed toward another 52 years of business success.

Christine May Be Next Hurricane

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical storm Christine, its top winds holding at 60 m.p.h., locked in a do-or-die struggle Saturday with a low pressure system that likely will determine whether the storm fizzles or blossoms into a hurricane.

Another tropical depression, meanwhile, turned up on weather satellite photographs of Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula and a reconnaissance plane was being dispatched today to check.

Dr. Robert Simpson, chief of the National Hurricane Center, said the low pressure trough encountered by Christine could either merge with the storm or continue to fight it.

"If they merge," Simpson said, "Christine will intensify rather quickly into a full hurricane. If they don't merge, Christine probably won't go anywhere or amount to much."

Simpson noted, however, that Christine was a "Cape Verde storm"—one that formed off the coast of Africa—"and they don't give up easy, even though it's a weak sister now."

Three Arrested On Arson Charges

KERHONKSON Three men, including one volunteer firefighter, have been arrested by state police at Ellenville and charged with arson.

The arrests came late Friday in connection with two fires in the area Wednesday night that destroyed an unoccupied house on Turkey Hill Road, Wawarsing and a barn filled with hay on Lower Cherrytown Road.

Remanded to Ulster County Jail on $10,000 bail each were: Douglas Decker, 27, Highland Avenue; John George Langjan, 25, Box 374; and Frank George Geiselhart, 26, Highland Avenue, all of Kerhonkson.

Police said that Decker was a member of the Kerhonkson Fire Department and had helped in putting out the fire on Turkey Hill Road.

Fires Wednesday were both termed "suspicious" and further investigation by Trooper Doug Diamond and BCI investigators subsequently led to the arrests.

The trio was arraigned before Town Justice Harold Lipton of Rochester, each on two counts of arson, third degree, with bail set. Reappearance in justice court is scheduled for Sept. 5.

Child Abuse Phone Numbers

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Suspected child abusers can be reported to authorities by calling a statewide toll-free telephone number set up Saturday under a law passed by the state Legislature this spring.

Astros Eager To Extend Space Record

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts said Saturday they felt "awfully good" and were eager to extend their record two-month space journey five or 10 days beyond its planned splashdown Sept. 25.

The space station crew charged through a heavy work schedule, shooting pictures of earth's natural resources to help farmers in South America and weather scientists studying tropical storms.

"When we launched there was some discussion about keeping us up here another five or 10 days," Bean said as he paused between chores. "We're all awfully healthy up here, feeling awfully good. Everything's working and we're working and feeling good and going uphill instead of downhill."

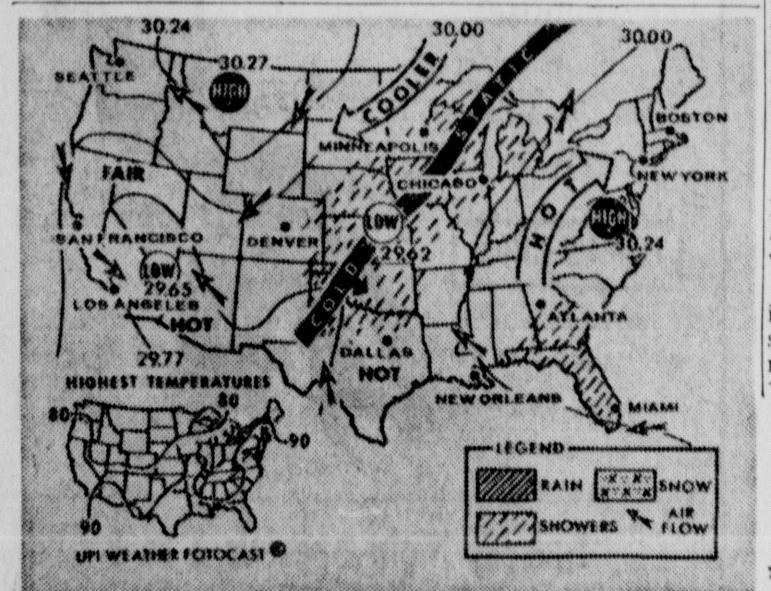

Skylab program director William C. Schneider said, however, that there was no consideration being given to an extension of the flight beyond 59 days. He said the mission was planned for two months to study medical data and no purpose would be served by an extension.

Highland Man Fined $185 on Drug, Charges

He pleaded guilty to all charges before Town of New Paltz Justice Rexford Schneider. He was committed to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of fine payment.

Summer's Last Fling, but... Heat Wave Is Still Around

By United Press International

A heat wave gripped much of the eastern part of the nation as the Labor Day holiday weekend signaled summer's last fling Saturday.

It was hot and humid, with haze, smoke or fog clinging to the ground, over most of the country from the Mississippi Valley to the East Coast.

A few thundershowers brought temporary relief from the heat wave that has gripped half of the nation for a week. But there was no general cooling.

Temperatures climbed to 92 by early afternoon in Chicago, the eighth consecutive day above 90. It was hotter than 90 for the fifth straight day in New York City.

Temperatures across New England hovered around 90 and the weather service in Boston reported that city had the hottest August in 103 years.

New York police estimated 3 million residents of the metropolitan area joined an exodus for the holiday weekend. Police at Cape Cod in Massachusetts reported a steady stream of autos crossed the Bourne Bridge from the metropolitan areas.

Ocean City, Maryland's No. 1 resort town, braced for a weekend crowd of more than 150,000. Few motels had vacancies.

Officials in Baltimore said Saturday two deaths and more than 180 hospitalizations were caused by the heat and pollution of the past week when temperatures crowded 100. The state health department urged persons with heart or respiratory problems to take it easy.

The Philadelphia Fire Department posed a Labor Day truce with kids who had illegally opened fire hydrants. Children were invited to fire houses at 70 locations with the promise firemen will turn on fireplugs equipped with sprinklers for them to play in.

There were scattered thundershowers along the Gulf Coast and in Florida. Showers also fell in the upper Mississippi Valley.

Light rain fell in the Northwest and snow showers were reported at higher elevations in the northern Rocky Mountains.

IRA Provisional Arrested

BELFAST (UPI) — Seamus MacStiofain last year. No formal announcement of the change has been made by the IRA.

The arrest of Twomey and the shooting of Bryson reportedly left David O'Connell as the only man in the top echelon of the Provisional leadership still at large.

Twomey, 53, was arrested in Carrickmacross, 15 miles south of the border with Northern Ireland.

Bryson and his companions were shot when they fired on soldiers who spotted them setting up an ambush in Belfast's Ballymurphy district, an army spokesman said.

A police spokesman described Bryson, who has escaped twice from prisons in Northern Ireland since 1971, as a key figure in the provisional IRA's tactical leadership and one of the organization's top marks-men.

Patrick Mulvenna, 22, was killed by the soldiers and James O'Rawe, 17, whose brother died in a gunbattle with troops earlier this year, was critically wounded. The army said another wounded man escaped.

Mulvenna's death brought to 878 the number of persons killed in four years of Northern Ireland violence among majority Protestants, minority Catholics and British security forces.

Ex-Jesuit Priest Married, Was Chancellor at Fordham

NEW YORK (AP) — "I feel very happy about my marriage, but very sad about the excommunication."

That was the way Leo McLaughlin, 61, summed up his feelings about his wedding to Sari Gombos, a 26-year-old free-lance writer.

McLaughlin, a former chancellor of Fordham University, was a Jesuit priest for 40 years. His wedding took place June 25 in Elkton, Md., but was not made public until Friday.

McLaughlin said he had applied last November for permission to return to layman's status and for a dispensation to marry — a normally lengthy procedure. The permission has not been granted, although it may be later. McLaughlin said that since he and Miss Gombos decided to marry anyway, they both have been automatically excommunicated.

"The difficulty of the decision is impossible to communicate in words," McLaughlin said. "There are always reasons for and reasons against. It's a decision I didn't make in great haste ... I have known Sari for a long time."

Why didn't he wait for permission?

"Impatience, I guess," said McLaughlin. "I'm not young and a year is a long time to wait ..."

McLaughlin said the change in his status was just one of a series of changes in his life recently.

He became president of Fordham, a Jesuit school in New York City, in 1965 and chancellor in 1968. During his tenure control of the university was shifted from the board of Jesuit trustees to an expanded board dominated by laymen.

Then, in 1970, he announced he was leaving to become director of freshman studies at Johnson C. Smith University, a small, mainly black school in Charlotte, N.C.

"I've been talking about race relations for years now," he said at the time of his resignation from Fordham. "I felt it was about time I put my life where my mouth is."

25,000 Watch Rock Music

HOLLAND, Vt. (AP) — An estimated 25,000 people spread out across an open field in sweltering sunshine as amplified rock music blasted through this tiny northern Vermont town.

State police said that about 80 arrests had been made on drug charges and stolen car charges but that in general the concert was "going pretty smoothly."

The 383 citizens of Holland were apprehensive of the sort of damage done to Watkins Glen, N.Y., by a rock festival. But so far, the noise and the crowds and the miles of traffic jams were the worst of it.

"So far, nothing very serious has happened," a state police spokesman said.

The promoters of "Mac's Party" complained that some of the audience pitched their bedrolls in the cornfields just outside the concert's grounds, escaping the $10 admission fee.

Neighbors had joined in to help as the concert got under way Friday night, putting up fences to prevent damage to nearby fields of corn and oats and scrubbing out trailers to be used as first aid centers.

A number of tents and wooden lean-tos cropped up around the concert area, and as the sun beat down Saturday noon, they provided the only shelter from the heat.

Beyond the concert grounds,

Ex-Senator Watkins Dies

OREM, Utah (UPI) — Arthur V. Watkins, the white-haired conservative from Utah who led the U.S. Senate's censure of Joseph McCarthy in 1954, died Saturday. He was 86.

Watkins, who served two terms in the U.S. Senate from 1947 to 1959, died of cancer at his daughter's home in Orem.

In 1954, Watkins, a conservative Republican, headed the Senate Select Committee that investigated censure charges against McCarthy following the hearings on the Wisconsin Senator's charges that Communists had infiltrated the Army.

Watkins, who authored a 1951 Senate resolution opposing entry of mainland China into the United Nations, urged his colleagues to expand the charges against McCarthy.

The Senate's censure, following McCarthy's actions at the nationally televised Army-McCarthy hearings, ended the Wisconsin Republican's reign as one of the most powerful men in Washington.

Watkins, who later referred to his chairmanship of the censure committee as his "greatest hour" in the Senate, was defeated for re-election in 1958 when Utah Gov. J. Bracken Lee, an outspoken ultra-conservative, ran against him as an independent and split the GOP vote. Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, won the election and has since been re-elected twice.

President Dwight Eisenhower, who offered Watkins his personal congratulations at a White House meeting after the McCarthy censure, appointed him to the Indian Claims Commission in 1959. Eisenhower named him chairman of the commission in 1960, a post he held until 1967.

He married Andrea Rich in 1912 and they had a son and four daughters. She died in 1971 and Watkins married his second wife, Dorothy, the following year. They had lived recently in Salt Lake City, but Watkins moved to the Orem home of a daughter a few days ago.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at the Sharon Stake House of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints in Orem.

Newsprint Talks Continue

TORONTO (AP) — Contract negotiations involving 6,000 workers and Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., continued here Saturday amid a news blackout.

Neither side has said whether an agreement could be reached this weekend for six Ontario mills, one in Manitoba and one in Quebec.

Negotiations resumed Tuesday. The union has not announced a strike date although it could have legally struck the mills Friday.

Joseph Tonelli, international president of the 400,000-member United Paper Workers International Union, flew here from New York Friday and, after an afternoon of talks, said he is optimistic that an amicable settlement will be reached.

The United Paper Workers represents 95 per cent of the Abitibi employees.

About 75 per cent of Abitibi's newsprint goes to the United States, 10 per cent overseas and the remainder to Canadian markets.

County Woman One of Five

First of Kind

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — With basic training only a few days away, the first women, including a Bloomington resident, to join the ranks of the New York State Police hope to be treated like the other recruits, but know they are the first of a kind.

The troopers, an all-male, military-like organization since the beginning in 1917, have accepted 130 candidates for the Sept. 6 class—five of them women.

Selected as the first members of their sex to wear a gray troopers uniform are: Pamela Bowers, 24, of Bloomington; Carol Johnston, 23, of Geneva; Maureen Gordinier, 21 of Rochester; Carol Desell, 22, of Watervliet; and Regina Robbins, 22, of New Woodstock.

Most of them have had some contact with police operations. Miss Desell, in fact, will merely be switching jobs at the State Police Academy in Albany. The blonde recruit has been manager of the facility's cafeteria.

Police work is not new to Miss Bowers' family. Her father, Harold, is chief of police in New Paltz and Pamela has been a security guard at the state college there for the past two years.

"I've always been interested in police work, ever since I was a little kid," she said. "I guess my father had a major influence on me that way."

Like the other young women in her group, Pamela knows they "will be watched closely to see how it works out." She says, "I know there will be some problems in the beginning because it's new for everyone, but everything will work out."

Miss Johnston, who has been working as a secretary since graduating from business school, admits she's anxious about her new career, but figures her male counterparts are in the same boat.

"I imagine everyone, man or woman, is nervous about it. You don't know what to expect," she said.

Miss Gordinier has been a store detective at a discount outlet in Rochester since March. She views her new profession with a sense of responsibility.

"One of the biggest problems will be being accepted both by male troopers and the public in general," she said.

She feels it is important, not only to herself, but for women in general that the all-male barriers of the state police be removed permanently. "I didn't do it for women's lib," she said, "but I suppose it is something that is good for it; that's the effect."

"We're more or less guinea pigs. People will be watching us to see how we do. I think all of us know it's up to us whether other women will be admitted, and how many."

Miss Robbins, a Syracuse University graduate who says she first became interested in police work in high school, does not want to be "a male police officer's assistant or helper."

Oil Shale Development
Could Ease the Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Getting oil from shale will destroy some vegetation, fill some Western canyons with debris, lower water quality and supply, and cause "virtual disappearance" of some wild creatures from some areas.

But shale development also promises billions of barrels of low sulphur oil which could ease U.S. energy shortages, make the nation more independent in its fuel supply, and help redress the balance of payments. It also could help hold the line on gasoline prices.

The pros and cons of oil shale ease U.S. energy shortages, this week in a 3,200-page, six-volume report issued by the Interior Department.

The report looked into the potential harm from the "prototype" shale program—by which the government would lease six tracts on land of about 5,000 acres each—and from future full development of shale. If the prototype program succeeded in holding harm to limits the government could accept, then the secretary of interior could be expected to open the way for more widespread leasing.

Estimates of the oil locked in shale rock range up to trillions of barrels, with perhaps hundreds of billions that could be obtained reasonably easily with emerging technology.

Shale is a layered rock present in vast deposits in the West.

When shale is broken up and heated to more than 900 degrees Fahrenheit, organic material in the shale emerges as shale oil, a synthetic crude oil whose properties are so much like petroleum that it can be refined into most petroleum products.

The richest shale deposits are in Utah, Wyoming, and Colorado. The Interior Department estimates the prototype program could cost up to $250 million for plants and equipment producing perhaps 250,000 barrels of oil daily. Unless that harms the environment too much, it could lead by 1985 to production of 1 million barrels a day, officials predicted.

11-County School By GOP

KINGSTON
An 11-county Republican School of Politics will be conducted in Kingston, Saturday, Sept. 15 from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Walnut Grove, Field Court.

The workshop is being conducted under the sponsorship of the Ulster County Women's Republican Clubs with the support and assistance of the Ulster County Republican Committee, according to Albert Spada, Ulster County Republican Chairman. Mrs. William D. Brinnier, vice-chairman of the Republican Committee, is workshop chairman.

Mrs. Brendon D. Alexander, president of the Republican Women's Club, who conceived the idea for the workshop, said the purpose of the School of Politics is to insure a Republican victory by strengthening the Republican majority through organization and dedicated involvement.

In letters to town chairmen and GOP office holders, Spada and Mrs. Brinnier said that "a training program of this type using professional political panels with a free exchange of ideas can be an immeasurable asset to the continuing grassroots building of the Republican Party."

Mrs. Charles Turck and Mrs. William Krum will serve as co-chairmen of the workshop which will deal with the obligations and responsibilities of committeemen and committeewomen, the role of the volunteer political worker, fund-raising, campaign management and the management of campaign headquarters on all levels.

A program this extensive has never before been made available to involved Republicans of Ulster and surrounding counties, according to the committee chairman.

Among counties expected to participate are: Albany, Rockland, Westchester, Sullivan, Putnam, Dutchess, Columbia, Greene, Schoharie, Delaware and Ulster.

SAVES PAR—Jim Wiechers of Napa, Calif., is not pleased as a long putt on the 18th failed to drop in for a birdie, but he kept par and a one-stroke edge to become the second day leader of the Greater Hartford Open Saturday with an 11-under 131. (UPI)

Wiechers Has 1 Shot Edge

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) —Chunky Jim Wiechers shot a steady but unspectacular five-under-par 66 Saturday for one stroke second round lead in the Greater Hartford Open —but Arnold Palmer blasted out his best round of the year, a 65, and moved within two shots of the lead.

Lee Trevino, Billy Casper and Bruce Devlin all were tied for second, a stroke behind Wiechers and a shot in front of Palmer, after two rounds of the $200,000 tournament at Wethersfield Country Club.

Wiechers reached the midway point of the tourney with a 65-66-131, 11 strokes under par on the 6,583-yard course. First round leader Hubie Green lost control of his game on the back nine Saturday and finished with a 73 for a two-day total of 136, five back.

Wiechers, who dropped in five putts of 20 feet or more in the opening round, said he did nothing spectacular on his second trip around the course, but shot a steady game in which he "was a lot closer to the hole."

"I'm doing everything well in this tournament," said Wiechers, who at 6-foot-2 and 220 pounds is one of the biggest men on the PGA tour. "I think I missed just one green in two days and I didn't miss a fairway."

Wiechers said the mid-day heat, which again was in the mid 90s, helped him concentrate on his game. "I find that I force myself more to concentrate in the heat than I do on a cool day."

Trevino, the defending champion, went six under par at 65 to move within one stroke of the top with 132. His biggest shot of the day was a 3-wood that left him 10 feet from the hole for an eagle 3 on the 497-yard 14th hole.

He sank birdie putts of 2, 30, 6 and 20 feet and saved par on the 18th hole by chipping out of a bunker and tucking away an 18-foot putt.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Vijay Amritraj, a beanpole Indian from Madras, shattered the championship dreams of former titleholder Rod Laver when he upset the fourth-seeded Australian, 7-6, 2-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, Saturday to reach the last 16 of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

The 19-year old Indian, who beat Laver in three sets at Bretton Woods, N.H., last month, whipped the 35-year old former world No. 1 player as a steady rain fell during the final set to make the already uncomfortable conditions all the more unbearable.

Amritraj attacked Laver throughout the match. His line passes matched those of the master, while he surrendered nothing at the net and on the volley. There was nothing fluky about his victory. It was earned by his own endeavors, especially his returns of service.

The fifth set started in a steady drizzle and the first four games went against service.

When Laver broke for a 4-3 lead, it appeared he had finally gotten the match under control, but Amritraj broke right back for 4-4, then held service and then broke again in the 10th game for the match.

He reached match point with a backpoint return of service to Laver's feet, and then the Australian returned a volley long and it was all over.

Two other Australians, 39-year-old Ken Rosewall and 28-year-old John Newcombe, both advanced.

Rosewall, who won here in 1956 and 1970, had little trouble with Japan's Jun Kamiwazumi, 7-6, 6-1, 6-1, while Newcombe, who won here as an amateur in 1967, captured the battle of the "mustaches" from Romania's brooding Ion Tiriac, 7-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Allan Stone, a second flight Australian, upset 14th seeded Adriano Panatta of Italy, 7-5, 6-7, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Other seeds to advance in the bottom half of the draw were No. 7 Tom Okker of The Netherlands, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 over Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; ninth-seeded Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., 6-3, 6-4, 6-7, 6-2 over Charlie Pasarell of Los Angeles, and 16th pick Cliff Richey of Sarasota, Fla., who beat Raul Ramirez of Mexico, 6-2, 6-4, 6-7, 7-6, the first time in three matches he didn't have to go the full five sets.

Rhodesia's Andrew Pattison, who knocked off co-first-seed Ilie Nastase of Romania in the previous round, Saturday defeated Charlie Owens of Tuscaloosa, Ala., 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

The hard-serving, quick-moving Amritraj never faulted or lost his poise against Laver, even when the rocket flashed some of his finest vintage tennis. The crowd of 10,868 roared its approval to the sportsmanship of the teenager who always applauded Laver's finest shots.

The opening set saw Laver fall twice as he chased cross-court passes and when it reached the tie-break, Amritraj won it five points to three, wrapping it up when Laver hoisted a top-spin lob over the baseline.

Laver broke for 1-0 in the second set, maintained the advantage although always under pressure and got another break in the seventh game. In the third set Amritraj got the bit in his teeth when Laver opened the ninth game with two double faults. The Indian got the break for the set. With dark clouds hanging over the Stadium, Laver broke for 1-0 after five deuces and quickly reeled off the fourth set to square the set.

Stone, who was drafted into the Australian Davis Cup team when the big names like Laver, Rosewall, Newcombe and others were ineligible, has a habit of causing upsets and Saturday he volleyed deep for the lines and commanded the net against the Italian who looked extremely unhappy on the grass because of the irregular bounce of the ball. Panatta's game is suited to clay where he can make the most of his delicate touch.

Rosewall, like good wine, seems to get better with age. He took the first tie-break, 5-2, and then his 22 years on the circuit made themselves evident again as he toyed with the Japanese Davis Cupper, Kenny Went for the corners. Rosewall said afterwards: "This heat is getting to be too much. If it keeps up it will go against me. I'm satisfied with the way I'm playing, but I still have not got used to the uneven pace of the courts. The bad bounces are something else."

When Rosewall talks like that it usually means he's happy with his game, so his opponents should take note.

Newcombe, who has played only nine tournaments this year and is in trouble with the Association of Tennis Professionals because he has signed with the still-to-be sanctioned World Team Tennis organization, looked at his very best against Tiriac.

Newcombe thundered down first service aces in nearly every game, he volleyed deep for the lines, while he was devastating overhead.

Tiriac, who is noted for his gamesmanship, pulled one of his acts in the first set tie-break, which he lost 5-1. For once he was right.

He served a double fault to put Newcombe 4-1 ahead and then queried the height of the net. The crowd booed, but the boos turned to cheers when it was found the net was two inches too high.

Afterwards Tiriac said: "Once I lost the first set I lost interest. I was too tired. This tournament and Wimbledon are the only championships played over five sets all the way through, I've had little rest."

Newcombe was unrepentant about joining WTT. "I don't need the money, but I like the concept of the plan and I believe it will eventually succeed."

About his form, the Aussie said: "Let me win another couple of matches and then I'll give you a report. But I'm physically sounder this year."

Newcombe has played only two tournaments this summer —at Louisville and Toronto last week. "It's a gamble and for the moment it seems to be working."

The seeded women, led by former champions Billie Jean King of Hilton Head, S.C., and Australia's Margaret Court, all advanced to the last 16 without undue difficulty.

Mrs. King, the defending champion who is seeking her fifth title at the age of 29, toyed with 6-foot-2 Karen Krantzke of Australia, 6-3, 6-1; Mrs. Court rolled by an outclassed Cecilia Martinez of San Francisco, 6-0, 6-1; fourth-seeded Evonne Goolagong of Australia beat Robin Tenney of Los Angeles, 6-0, 6-3, while Australia's Kerry Melville, the fifth seed, beat South Africa's Laura Rossouw, 6-4 6-3. Third-seeded Chris Evert of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., advanced Friday and Saturday she was joined by her 15-year-old sister Jeanne, who upset Val Zeigen of Mission Viejo, Calif., 6-3, 6-2.

The top four girls have dropped only 27 games among them in eight matches and the longer the tournament goes the more it looks like they'll be the final four.

The two Aussies have dropped four games apiece; Mrs. King has lost nine, while Chris Evert is one back at 10.

Mrs. King, who has been involved in a running battle with authority the last three years as she has pushed the women's game ahead, said: "It was nice just to play tennis again. I really enjoyed it out there."

Stadler, Strawn In Amateur Finals

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI)—Craig Stadler and David Strawn, a couple of young underdogs, advanced to the finals of the 73rd U.S. Amateur Championship Saturday with semifinal victories over two of the tournament's former champions.

Stadler, 20, of La Jolla, Calif., turned in a 3 and 1 victory over defending champion Vinny Giles of Richmond, Va., while Strawn of Concord, N.C., defeated 1964 winner Billy Campbell of Huntington, W.Va., 6 and 5.

Strawn, a third year law student at Furman University, and Stadler, a junior at the University of Southern California, both making their first Amateur appearances, meet today in the 35-hole final.

Stadler, a moustachioed, 5-10, 205-pounder who outdrove Giles on most holes, got off to a flying start, winning the first three holes with a birdie and a pair of pars.

After that, it was all uphill for the 30-year-old Giles, who managed to cut the margin to one hole early on the back nine, but could never get any closer.

Giles, who beat A. Downing Gray 5 and 3 in the morning's quarterfinals, captured his first hole at the sixth when he hit his second shot three feet from the pin, took the ninth when he knocked in a six-foot putt while Stadler missed a two-footer and won the 10th when Stadler went into a bunker and blasted out 20 feet short of the pin.

Stadler, named to this year's All-American college golf team, said he had played well in stroke play all summer but had been having trouble in match play competition coming into the Amateur.

"I had been playing the man instead of the course," Stadler said. "Lately I've been playing the course and I think it's helped a lot."

Stadler said he was "very happy with my iron play" although he admitted his driving especially late in the afternoon rounds gave him some problems. "I was hitting them every which way," he said.

In the quarterfinals, Stadler eliminated 1973 British Amateur champion Dick Siderow of Westport, Conn., 2 and 1.

Campbell, 50, the 1964 Amateur champion, got off to a rocky start on the very first hole when he hit his drive under a tree and had a lay out. He settled for a bogey five and lost the hole to Strawn's par, the first of five straight holes Campbell lost.

Malave arose but was unable to defend himself further from the aggressive Buchanan and referee Herb Krunowitz stopped the bout at 1:43 of the round to prevent Malave, a Puerto Rican now living in New York, from absorbing further punishment.

Buchanan, still looking for a chance to regain the lightweight crown he lost to Roberto Duran of Panama in June 1972, was in complete command of Malave throughout. From the opening round, when Malave was on the verge of getting knocked out, Buchanan kept up

Buchanan who weighed 137½, the heaviest of his career, still gave away 3½ pounds to Malave, the fourth ranking junior welterweight, but the extra weight in no way slowed down the speedy Buchanan.

After taking the first two rounds easily, Buchanan kept up the attack in the third round when he oodled Malave's nose with four left jabs in a row. Buchanan also opened the cut over Malave's left eye in the fifth round and finally put down the game underdog for the first time early in the seventh round.

Both fighters' faces were masks of blood when the bout was stopped, with Malave bleeding from cuts in the mouth, the nose and from over the eye. Buchanan ran into an unintentional butt in the fourth round that opened a cut over his left eye and left one side of his face a pool of blood for the remainder of the round.

IT'S THAT TIME OF YEAR, when the home team, favored to win the pennant is in fourth place and out of the race. It's that time when owners and fans look for someone to blame. And, it's usually the manager who takes the rap. At Yankee Stadium, a fan decides Ralph Houk is at fault and he lobbies for Mickey Mantle to replace him. At bat is Baltimore's Mark Belanger. The Orioles won Saturday's game, 10-6, dropping the Yanks 10½ games out of first. Details on major league baseball are on page 18. (UPI)

U.S., Cuba Clash Again

BELGRADE (UPI)—The U.S. Olympic bronze medal water polo team whipped Cuba 4-3 in an incident-filled opening match Saturday at the start of the first World Swimming Championships.

Paced by two goals from Peter Asch of Berkeley, Calif., the U.S. squad continued its winning streak against Cuba which stretches six years.

Although eight Cubans were suspended and one, Orlando Cowley, expelled from the game, there was no repetition of the fighting which took place the last time athletes from the two nations met in a stormy basketball battle at the World University Games in Moscow.

The suspensions all were one-minute penalties for fouls and the player expelled was banished from the game for excessive fouling. Officials said the number of fouls was unusually high for such a game.

Eric Lindroth of Newport Beach, Calif., brought the United States back into the game in the second period after Carlos Sanchez had put the Cubans one up after only three minutes.

Asch scored once in the second period and again in the third and then Jon Svendsen of Orinda, Calif., wrapped it up at the end of the third quarter after Sanchez had scored his second goal.

Tereza Anderson capped the good American start in the championships by taking an almost unassailable lead after the compulsory stunts in the synchronized swimming.

In the team standings, however, Canada had the slight edge with five girls in the top eight.

Roman's Manager Will Protest 'Double Foul'

Roman's manager Bill Daly (L) and referee Jay Edson over whether Foreman hit Roman when he was down. A formal protest is expected. (UPI)

TOKYO (AP)—Round Two in Friday night's George Foreman-Joe "King" Roman world heavyweight championship fight was expected to be a written protest submitted by Roman's manager, Bill Daly.

Round One came to an abrupt end when Roman was counted out at the two-minute mark of the opening stanza in what had been a scheduled 15-round match for the title Foreman gained when he stopped Joe Frazier in the second round last Jan. 22 with a second round knockout.

The protest was to be based on what Daly and Al Braverman, Roman's trainer, termed "a double foul" they said occurred about 40 seconds before Roman was counted out.

Daly said he would write out the protest and present it to world and Japanese boxing officials. But prospects for Roman's winning even this particular round didn't look overly promising.

"What is there to protest?" shrugged World Boxing Council president Ramon Velasquez of Mexico.

The 25-year-old Roman, with phone calls coming in—some from his native Puerto Rico—saying he had been cheated in his first round loss, had little to say himself. "He (Foreman) pushed me down on the floor. I tried to get up. He hit me. That was it right there."

Referee Jay Edson of Phoenix ruled that Foreman was following through on a punch and had not committed a foul. But he did not count it as a knockdown. He waved Foreman to a neutral corner for about 10 seconds, but said Roman replied that he was okay.

Roman's camp held that the real knockout punch occurred during that action. And Roman later acknowledged that "I was groggy."

Daly complained, "There will be no more boxing if you are allowed to push a man down and club him on the floor." Braverman, who charged "it was a double foul," noted that when officials met Thursday to discuss rules, he had raised a warning that the champion might use illegal pushing tactics.

"We knew what was going to happen," he said.

Foreman, for his part, said that when Edson said he did not deliberately foul Roman and was winning easily without any fouling, "I felt better."

"It was one of those things," he added, remarking how one of a flurry of punches had hit Roman as he went down.

Roman's handlers said they counted 31 misses by Foreman on wild punches. "He was beginning to get punched out and he was absolutely frantic about it," Braverman said, adding that that accounted for the foul.

After the controversial punch, Roman went down twice more under the rain of blows from the 24-year-old champion. Said Foreman, the last time "I knew he wouldn't get up. The body punches took effect."

He said he couldn't remember what punch produced the knockout of the first challenger for his world title. It was the 12th opening-round knockout among the 36 Foreman has scored en route to an undefeated professional record of 39 straight victories.

Orioles Roll, 10-6

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles jumped on ex-teammate Pat Dobson for four runs in the first inning Saturday and got three hits each from Tommy Davis and Boog Powell to coast to a 10-6 rout of the New York Yankees, their 16th victory in 18 games.

Bosox Win, 5-0

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Marty Pattin pitched a five-hit shutout and Carlton Fisk slammed a three-run homer Saturday to give the Boston Red Sox an easy 5-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The victory broke a four-game Brewers winning streak, three of them over the Red Sox.

A crowd of 21,410 enabled the Brewers to top the million mark in home attendance for the first time in the club's four years in Milwaukee.

Pattin, starting for the first time since going to the bullpen July 28, allowed only five singles. He walked one and struck out eight, raising his record to 12-13.

Fisk's three-run homer came in the second after Orlando Cepeda and Ben Oglive singled. It was his 25th homer of the season.

The Red Sox also scored in the third on singles by Tommy Harper and Luis Aparicio and Carl Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly and again in the eighth on a single by Yastrzemski, a walk to Cepeda and Danny Cater's double.

The Second Ace

by Charles J. Tiano, Sports Editor

Most of the area's sports buffs consider us an incurable golf addict, a sports editor with total commitment to the Royal and Ancient. It's a myth of course. On our personal Richter scale, it has always been baseball, bowling and golf in that order.

The order of priorities, we have to admit, may have been dictated by relative skill in the three sports, but golf we discovered in relatively old age, athletically speaking. And we never had much luck solving its mysteries. The guilts of the cynics notwithstanding, we are constrained to ask a question that saddens us:

Whatever happened to big-time bowling in Kingston?

Is it true that there are not enough 180-average bowlers around to field a first-class major league of eight teams? With bowling numerically at its highest peak ever and junior bowling developed to the highest degree in history?

The once mighty Invitational Classic—the showcase of Ulster County bowling—is down to three-man teams! Once there were 5-man teams with nobody with less than 180 average eligible. Then the squads were reduced to four men and now three. Incredible.

"There's nothing incredible about it," says a long-time observer of the deteriorating bowling scene in Kingston. "There just aren't that many 180 bowlers anymore," he says. "On top of that there seems a growing indifference to league and tournament bowling. There was a time when individual bowlers scrounged pennies for a year to make the annual trip to the American Bowling Congress tournament—the World Series of bowling for the little guy. Not anymore. If the sponsor doesn't pick up the whole tab, they just forget it. And sponsors like that are non-existent these days."

Bowlers are quick to blame lane conditions for their inept performances and some protest that league costs are skyrocketing out of sight. Others put the blame on alleged poor pins. The fact is a league competes on the same lanes against the same pins at the same time. If one bowler does better than the other, obviously he is meeting the challenge of the lanes better than his opponent. But, if lane and pin conditions are as bad as some bowlers keep claiming why don't they do something about it. Or do they find it easier to challenge a newspaper with a petition bearing several thousand signatures than to stand up to the bowling proprietors?

Bowlers as a class are notorious grippers when it comes to publicity. They never get enough and they're never satisfied and while quick to criticize newspapers they seldom look in their own backyard. Many bowling secretaries are vastly overpaid and incompetent. They do very little in the way of helping a newspaper in the week-to-week publication of scores. Descriptions of big games or series, winning streaks, individual achievements and "color" items, they blithely ignore.

Bowling is one of the country's top participant sports in the nation but poll after poll shows that in sports page reader interest, it ranks way down on the totem pole.

The individual spirit in bowling has long since vanished. Match games, pot games, intra-city rivalries are a thing of the past. Small leagues, engulfed by huge establishments, are virtually unnoticed. It's a plastic world in which numbers is the thing—and they are beginning to shrink.

Bowling is one of the cleanest, most-fairly played sports on the American scene. Compared to golf, where a player may by design or unwittingly break several rules in a single round; few of the eight million men, women and children who compete in organized leagues break or even bend the rules.

The worst offense in bowling is sandbagging, using a phoney average or by design limiting pinfall. It's not easy to pull off, but filing improper averages for tournaments is fairly commonplace. Occasionally, a league treasurer will abscond with funds and draw long-term suspension of life sentence away from the lanes. Amateur golfers don't have these problems because they are absolutely simon pure and never see money, only merchandise.

The basic game of bowling has changed very little since the founding fathers of the ABC held their historic meeting in New York's Beethoven Hall 78 years ago. The dimensions of the lanes, pins and balls have remained standard but due to electronic and chemical technological advances the surrounding accessories have changed dramatically.

Bowling balls of basically one color—black—used to roll back from the pits on narrow tracks between the lanes in full view. Now the many hued balls disappear into the area of the automatic machinery and are delivered silently and quickly to the uncluttered approach area. Today it would be entirely possible for each player on competing teams to own a different colored bowling ball.

Automatic foul detectors, pinsetting equipment and scoring devices have replaced foul judges, pinboys and scorekeepers. In the not too distant future, considering improvements already accomplished, we can expect electronic wonders not only to keep score but to spew forth a current league standing sheet minutes after the last ball is rolled in a league session.

It wasn't too long ago that bowlers kept their hands dry with the aid of chalk block and the ever present towel hanging from the newel. In today's bowling center there is a modern way for drying hands with the electric drier on each ball return unit. The atmosphere is rigidly controlled by air conditioning, dehumidifying and smoke elimination equipment.

That's a far cry from opening a window in the back, a door in the front and hoping the wind is in the right direction.

Bowling lacks the snoo appeal of golf and its detractors, particularly among baseball, football and basketball players, consistently put down the game as one without defense. They have a point. You might trip an opponent or jam sticking gum into his thumb-hole but that would amount to kid stuff.

As in medal play in golf, the best defense in bowling is a good offense. Once your score is posted on the board, the other guy has to beat you. But there is no way you can stop him from doing it. A 10-pin tap may thwart your opponent in the last frame of the match. But it was tough luck on his part and nothing of your doing.

We will be publishing the annual rules covering the publication of scores several times between now and the opening of the tenpin season. You know what? Many secretaries won't even bother to read them. And we'll receive reports based on rules that were in effect three or four years ago.

We're saddened by the decline of big time bowling in Kingston. Not only did we help form the KBA but we're going to take some credit for building the sport in its Golden Age.

We have a tip for some of the secretaries—earn your salary by doing your job properly. Don't fudge on your responsibilities. To the bowlers, especially those in the upper brackets, we say—stop crying about lane and pin conditions, costs and schedules. Concentrate on knocking down pins. That's what bowling is all about, isn't it?

KINGSTON

The old cheerleading chant of rah, rah, sis, boom, bah is a thing of the past at Kingston High School. Twelve Maroon cheerleaders recently attended the National Cheerleading Association's Camp at Utica College of Syracuse University to bring back the latest cheers and routines to use at this year's athletic contests. It's safe to say that things will never be the same.

Followers of Maroon football, soccer and basketball will see the spirited varsity and jayvee cheerleading squads in action during the fall and winter seasons.

Under the supervision of Coach Ms. Mary McLoughlin, 22 girls meet once or twice a week to practice the cheers, chants, pom-pom routines, gymnastics and double stunts that are used to keep Kingston rooters solidly behind their athletes.

Attending the cheerleading camp early in August were varsity captains Sally Provenzano and Patti Reidner, along with Yonny Becker, Sharon Cacopardo, Gail Cadden and Debbie Ziros of the varsity squad. Varsity alternates Sue Rua and Cissy Williams also made the trip.

Colleen Hendricks, Helene Kahrs and Lynn Slover went from the jayvee squad, as did jayvee alternate Mary Mayer.

The Kingston girls made an excellent showing in the nightly competition, winning several awards. They captured four ribbons, a spirit stick and the most coveted honor, the Spark Plug Award.

Given the spirit stick for their tremendous spirit and pep throughout the week, the girls won the admiration of the other 29 squads attending, who voted them winners of the spark plug award for showing the most energy and overall warmth.

The new cheers learned at the camp will be incorporated into the repertoire; the 10 girls who didn't go to the camp learning from the ones who did. Through the years the program has expanded and been modernized. Girls move from jayvee to varsity much the same way as boys do in various sports. The jayvee squad is the place to learn the system and polish up before graduating to the varsity.

Each squad has nine regulars and two alternates. The remaining 10 girls who make up the K.H.S. cheerleading corps are Maryann Naccarato, Terri Motzkir, and Rose Schueller (varsity), Trissy Albano, Crystal Byrd, Pam Brandon, Toddy Larios, Brenda Madison, Holly Caple (jayvee), and Jeanne Grogan (jayvee alternate).

British Battle

BRICKENDON GRANGE, England (UPI)—Tony Jacklin plays Peter Oosterhuis Sunday as a $7,500 match to determine who is Britain's top golfer.

"I just want to see who is Britain's best," said Vice-Chairman Humphrey Brosnan of Brickendon Grange Golf Club, who put up the prize money.

Oosterhuis, 25, Britain's top money winner this season, already has beaten the 28-year-old Jacklin by three strokes over the same course in May. The winner will receive $5,000 and the loser $2,500 but Jacklin also has demanded $1,250 appearance money.

Pepper Rodgers Still Funny

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Pepper Rodgers getting ready for the 1973 college football season is just as funny as the Pepper Rodgers who prepared for the 1972 season.

Maybe funnier. "I'm the same old Pepper," agreed UCLA's popular football coach, "except I have a few more stories to tell. You have to keep adding to your material all the time, you know."

There is a change in Rodgers' stature from a year ago, though. In 1972, he was coming off a 2-7-1 season. His Bruins rebounded for an 8-3 record last year.

"I guess I have more friends than last year," admitted UPI's West Coast Coach of the Year in 1972. "But I'm not going to sit up on a pedestal and judge people. Winning is what this thing's all about."

Rodgers didn't know a year ago what kind of a team he was going to have. He does now.

"I'm very, very optimistic," he said. "At this particular time last year there were a lot of question marks. The Wishbone was new, Mark Harmon was new, James McAlister was new and we were coming off a terrible year. None of this is true today."

"I'd say we should be 25 percent better at running the Wishbone. Last year we were just trying to establish the offense during fall practice. This year we're going to improve more. We'll have a much better passing game and that will keep our opponents more honest."

"On defense, we have just about everybody back (9 of 11 starters) so we'll be better defensively, too."

Harmon, the son of former Heisman Trophy winner Tom Harmon, is back to quarterback Rodgers' Wishbone while McAlister, the 27-foot long jumper who rushed for 778 yards as a halfback last season, has been switched to fullback. Also returning to the Bruin backfield is halfback Kermit Johnson, who ran for 952 yards last year.

In the Bruins' 1972 finale, they were beaten by University of Southern California 24-7 in a game that meant the Pacific 8's bid to the Rose Bowl. USC clinched the UPI national championship with the victory and then destroyed Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

"We might turn out to be the No. 2 team in the country and still be second best in town," laughed Rodgers, whose Bruins open their season at Nebraska in two weekends. "But I think we have a good chance at the Rose Bowl. Not the best chance but a good chance. SC is going to be great again and they'll have the momentum going. We're going to be a good football team. Whether we're a great one remains to be seen."

Rodgers professes not to be concerned about the possibility of an injury to Harmon, who broke his collarbone in spring practice, in an offense that is hard on quarterbacks.

"I think the other two kids (John Sciarra and Jeff Dankworth) are both fine players," the UCLA coach assessed. "I wouldn't hesitate to play either one of them."

Outdoor Bowling

Teams representing The Place and Pier 7 will stage an outdoor tenpin bowling match Monday, Sept. 3, at 1 p.m. on North Street and Delaware Avenue. Pins and bowling balls will be furnished by John Ferraro's Bowlerama.

One Shafters

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP)—The U.S. Trotting Association reports that standardbreds pulling single shaft sulkes are winning 80 per cent of the races held at Windsor Raceway in Ottawa. On July 22, all ten Windsor winners were equipped with Joe King's single-shaft bikes.

UCCC Will Host British Cousins

STONE RIDGE, Ulster County Community College's soccer team will open its 1973 season with an exhibition against the Birmingham University team from Birmingham, England, Coach George Vizvary announced last night. The game will be played on Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 5:30 p.m. at Dietz Stadium.

It will be the first opportunity local fans will have this season to see the Ulster team, which last fall won the Mid-Hudson Conference championship and posted an overall 12 and 2 record.

"The English team is a good one," said Coach Vizvary, "and I'm sure local soccer fans will see an excellent game."

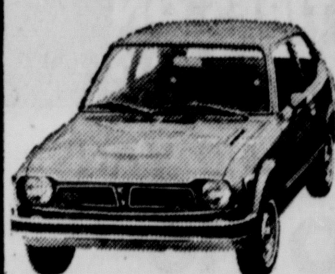

The Birmingham team is on an American tour as part of an international sports exchange and also will compete against Adelphi University, Hartwick College and Oneonta State University, three teams well above the UCCC level.

Coach Vizvary says the in-his 1973 roster, Vizvary international exhibition is an indication of the growth of soccer in this area as well as the whole country. While withholding any information on its first international game.

Giants Romp

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Norm Snead, showing the play-calling mastery of a 13-year veteran, passed for two touchdowns and scored a third on a bootleg Saturday to drive the New York Giants to their fifth straight exhibition victory, 42-21, over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Randy Johnson, who replaced Snead in the third quarter, threw a 13-yard scoring pass to Bob Grim. Clements scored his second TD later in the period on a one-yard burst after Johnson drove the Giants 71 yards in nine plays.

Roman Gabriel replaced John Reeves as the Eagle quarterback in the second half and threw touchdown passes of 25 and 27 yards to Harold Carmichael. Tom Sullivan capped a 71-yard drive with a one-yard burst for the first Philadelphia score.

Gabriel, however, committed mistakes that led to Giants touchdowns. One was a fumble that put the Giants in position for Johnson's pass to Grim, and the other was an intercepted screen pass that was returned 55 yards by tackle Larry Jacobson for the Giants' final score.

Philadelphia 21-7; New York 42-21.

Saugerties Grid Opener Off

A mental error on the part of the Arlington High School football coaching staff has forced the postponement of the scheduled Sept. 15 opening Dutchess County Scholastic League game at Saugerties.

Sawyer coach Fred Seither revealed Friday that Arlington had inadvertently started its pre-season training camp five days later than the Aug. 22 date observed by all other schools in New York State. As a result, state rules prohibit Arlington from beginning its season on the same day as everyone else.

The Arlington-Saugerties game has been reset for Wednesday, Oct. 31. It creates an unusual situation for both schools. Saugerties will have to play two games in the span of four days (Oct. 27 against Roosevelt and Oct. 31, Nov. 3 is an open date.) Arlington will have three games in one week.

Saugerties now must wait until Sept. 22 to open its season. The Sawyers will be at Beacon on that day.

Regelski Sparks Kingston Moose

OWEGO
Frank Regelski was just about perfect here Saturday as he pitched the Kingston Moose Small Fry past their first opponents in the New York State Moose baseball tournament. Regelski racked up 16 strikeouts to blank Albany on a no-hitter while his teammates blasted away for a 14-0 Kingston victory.

The win moved the locals into today's quarterfinals. Ted Schultz and Randy Perry will handle the pitching as Kingston meets homestanding Oswego, victors over Corning in the opening round.

Regelski simply handcuffed the Albany lineup. He dished up two walks during the game but fanned practically everybody else who came to the plate.

Kingston took the lead in the first inning when Rich Rosencrantz doubled and scored on a sacrifice and a passed ball, but the game was only close until the third. The locals then erupted for 10 runs, an explosion that included a string of four straight doubles by Kingston hitters.

The winners coasted home with another score in the fourth and wound it up on a two-run home run by Ed DeBrosky in the fifth. Rosencrantz and Phil Haber also paced the Kingston attack with three hits each.

Sonny, Cher Living High

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Back in the early '60s Salvatore Phillip Bono was driving a truck in the Los Angeles area while struggling on the side to sell his songs.

Cherilyn Sarkisian had dropped out of a Los Angeles high school, was dabbling with acting and mingling with the L.A. recording crowd.

America's favorite comedy-singing couple are living high these days. They have one of the nation's most successful television shows, "The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour," a host of hit records and all the niceties that go with "the good life" including a mansion in Holmby Hills, California.

But the stunning couple, both from broken homes, have known hard times.

Sonny put aside the slapstick to share his philosophy. It boils down to a confidence in their lives and their future. His "feeling" first came in 1965 when he and Cher were struggling to gain recognition.

"I wrote down what I felt (that no matter how tough things got, things would turn out all right) and that became a song, and the song became a record and that became us."

"I Got You Babe" has sold more than three million copies and catapulted the couple onto the national scene.

Their concert routine varies little from their TV put-downs with Cher downgrading Sonny for a lack of masculinity and Sonny coming back with funny remarks about Cher's nose. Sonny momentarily assumes the role of a Tom Jones. With tuxedo open and shirt falling out a bit, his legs spread in an Elvis stance, he casts a sneer out at the audience.

"They're not buying it, Cher."

"I didn't think you sold it, Sonny."

Nutrition's answer to inflation: Milk.

One of the best Food bargains you can buy:

Every day, you face an increasingly difficult challenge: Feeding a family of two, or three, or more on a budget that constantly gets harder and harder to balance.

It's possible your family income has grown over recent years. Yet, it's also true that, through these same years, less and less of the take-home portion of that income has gone for food. Five years ago the average family found 17.2% being spent for food. In 1972 the percentage had declined to 15.7%.

Here, for example, are some typical living-cost rises over the past several years.

It's readily apparent from the above chart that dairy products—milk, in particular—have held the price line remarkably well. But the reasonable price of milk is only part of the story. In one neat, complete package, milk offers nature's most nearly perfect food. Here are some facts to support that statement:

Milk Supplies the Following Percent of U.S. Recommended Daily Nutritive Allowances—Two 8-Ounce Glasses

	U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance*	Amount Supplied By Two 8-Oz. Glasses Milk	Percent Recommended Daily Allowance
Protein	45 grams	15.8 grams	35.3%
Vitamin A	5000 I.U.	780 I.U.	12.7%
Thiamine B <sub>1</sub>	1.5 milligrams	.14 milligrams	9.3%
Riboflavin B <sub>2</sub>	2.2 milligrams	.27 milligrams	12.3%
Calcium	1.0 grams	.54 milligrams	54.0%
Phosphorus	1.0 grams	.42 grams	42.0%

*These nutrients and levels have been derived by the Food and Drug Administration from the "Recommended Dietary Allowances" published by the Food and Nutrition Board, National Academy of Sciences—National Research Council.
**Composition of Foods, Agricultural Handbook, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Milk stands as one of the nation's most nearly perfect foods.

It provides high-quality proteins...rich in amino acids for muscle-tissue building and repair. Calcium and phosphorus in a ratio most favorable for use by the body. Rich sources of Vitamin A, plus Thiamine and Riboflavin in important amounts. All this makes milk a body-building package no other single food can match.

Milk is one of the best food bargains you can buy.

The dairy farm family, through the years, has developed efficient new methods to help hold a reasonable price for you. In the past 20 years, we've seen per-cow milk production rise 71%, and so milk-prices remain relatively low because of production gains and new efficiency—even though dairy farm family costs continue to rise sharply.

You pay more today for almost everything, but milk continues as a bargain. And, milk brings you the most nutritional elements available in one single food. Which means that today, as always, milk is still one of the best values you can get for your money.

Milk will always be a Bargain.

Fatals, Drownings in Area

By TIM SCHUSTER

POUGHKEEPSIE — A Northern Dutchess County man has been charged with criminally negligent homicide in the hit-and-run death of an 18-year-old Wappingers Falls girl, and a Long Island woman was killed in another accident in Dutchess County, as the Labor Day holiday death toll continued to mount.

The holiday in the area was further marred by two drownings — one in the Town of Red Hook and the other in the Hudson River near Croton-on-Hudson.

Dutchess County Sheriff's deputies arrested Richard Newman, 30, of Clinton Corners Saturday afternoon on the homicide charge, as well as leaving the scene of an accident, driving with a revoked license, and operating a vehicle with neither insurance nor registration.

The body of the girl he was alleged to have struck, Carmine Algerie, was found at 2:40 a.m. by the side of a rural road near Poughkeepsie Saturday. She had been struck about 1:30 a.m., deputies said.

Newman was ordered held in Dutchess County Jail in lieu of $15,000 bail. The girl lived with her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blasick.

Grace Kramer, 55, of Jamaica, L.I., was killed Saturday when the car she was driving collided with another auto near Wappingers Falls, state police said. Troopers said the woman died from massive internal injuries following the collision on the Taconic State Parkway.

The fatal area accidents were two of 124 highway deaths in the early nationwide count during the Labor Day weekend.

In New Paltz, two New York City men were reported to be in "critical" condition at St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie late Saturday.

Village police reported that the 4 a.m. Saturday accident occurred as the vehicle ran a stop sign from Harrington Street onto Main Street and plowed into a tree. Police were unsure who was driving, and Patrolmen Walton and Glass are continuing their investigation.

Andrew Perez and Mark Allen, both of New York City, were transported by Doctors Ambulance to St. Francis with injuries tentatively identified as fractured skulls.

Also in Dutchess County, a 16-year-old Holmes, N.Y. boy drowned Friday afternoon in Spring Lake, Town of Red Hook. Lyndon Loyd was reportedly trying to swim across the lake with an unidentified 15-year-old companion and could not reach the opposite shore.

Another drowning occurred during Friday night's violent storm near Croton-on-Hudson, as Dr. Dean L. Arlton, a professor of music at Kings College, was missing and presumed drowned after his sailboat capsized in the Hudson River.

Croton police said a passenger on the boat, Rachael Gardner, 17, of Binghamton, was wearing a life preserver and reached shore safely after the mishap about 7 p.m.

Early weekend accidents were also reported by state police on Route 28 in West Hurley, with five New York City persons treated at Kingston Hospital; a Volkswagen bus caught fire on Route 28 near the Sunset Drive-In, with no reported injuries and an auto accident on Route 209 was reported. No details were available.

State Drug Law in Effect

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tough new drug laws now in effect in New York State mean that pushers get life sentences, the persons who turn them in get $1,000 and addicts who want to break the habit still can get free treatment.

The no-nonsense anti-drug program, approved by the state Legislature this spring, went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Saturday.

The law provides for life imprisonment for the sale or possession of more than one ounce of hard drugs in large quantities. In certain cases, parole can be granted only for the "toughest antidrug program in the nation," Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller said he had asked the legislature to end opium must be jailed for a minimum of one year.

The new law also provides harsh penalties for abuse of LSD, certain prescription drugs, cough mixtures with codeine and diet pills with amphetamines.

A prison sentence of one to 15 years is provided for possession or sale of an ounce or more of marijuana and a maximum jail term of seven years, with probation available, for possession of one-quarter to one ounce.

Lifetime parole is provided for defendants convicted of some felonies, if they cooperate with the prosecution. Bounties of $1,000 will be paid for tips on drug pushers.

Agnew has vehemently denied allegations that he received kickbacks from state contractors while he was Baltimore County chief executive and governor of Maryland, and he has protested leaks to news media of the federal investigation of his activities.

Even so, the latest Gallup Poll found Agnew's support down from 35 per cent last April to 22 per cent in August, effects for Agnew as a result of the investigation, saying: "I think he's probably been hurt to a degree, whether he's guilty or not." Reagan, among the other 10 prospective candidates listed not guilty. The implications of such accusations tend to hurt a candidate.

Said Oregon Chairman David Green: "I think it probably has very definitely affected Agnew's chances. He's no longer the obvious front runner."

Florida Chairman L. E. "Tommy" Thomas: "Just the fact that he has been charged definitely will hurt him. Even if he comes out completely clean, just having been accused will hurt him."

Chairman Herman Brown of Delaware agreed Agnew was politically harmed "even if he is cleared completely."

"If all the charges are proved unfounded, I don't think it would damage him, and it could help," said Richard Bennett, Alabama chairman. But he qualified that: "If there should be any lingering suspicion or taint whatsoever, I think it would damage him severely."

Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox told Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica this week that he does not want the grand jury to consider further indictments until he knows whether it will have access to the tapes.

Cox is several steps ahead of the committee in their separate suits to get the tapes, and he hopes to have his suit ready to present to the Supreme Court when the high tribunal begins its fall term Oct. 1.

Sirica ruled Wednesday that Nixon should give him the tapes for personal inspection before the judge decides whether to order them given to the grand jury. Nixon decided to appeal the ruling by Sirica, who gave the President until this Thursday to do so.

Sam Dash, chief counsel for the Senate Watergate committee, told a reporter the committee could issue an interim report on the Watergate phase of its investigation without the tapes.

Many GOP Leaders Appear Divided on Agnew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many state Republican leaders believe Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's 1976 presidential aspirations have been hurt by allegations of wrongdoing. But nearly as many believe he could turn the affair to his advantage should he prove his innocence.

A majority of the GOP state chairmen responding to a UPI survey expressed confidence in Agnew, but neither the Watergate charges, and declined further comment; 13 expressed support for the vice president and said with an alleged kickback he would not be hurt—or might even be helped—if his innocence is established; 13 thought it would be premature to speculate on the effects; and 8 declined to comment.

Agnew has vehemently denied allegations that he received kickbacks from state contractors while he was Baltimore County chief executive and governor of Maryland, and he has protested leaks to news media of the federal investigation of his activities.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The legal suits to obtain President Nixon's secret tape recordings will delay grand jury indictments in the Watergate case until at least mid-October but would not stop the Senate committee from issuing an interim report, investigators indicated Saturday.

Meanwhile, AFL-CIO President George Meany said Saturday Congress would have to impeach President Nixon if he defied a Supreme Court order to turn over his White House tapes on Watergate.

But Meany declined to speculate whether an impeachment move would succeed in the House, in such eventuality, or whether the Senate would convict Nixon.

PEKING (UPI) — Exiled Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk said Saturday he will not meet Henry A. Kissinger when the U.S. secretary of state-designate comes to Peking after Senate confirmation of his cabinet appointment.

"I shall go to Hanoi and stay in Hanoi all the days Kissinger spends in Peking and in China," Sihanouk said in the BEIRUT (UPI) — The Libyan government of Col. Moammar Khadafy announced Saturday its takeover of controlling 51 per cent interest in six foreign oil companies operating in the country, five of them American.

The ruling announced on Tripoli radio affected all the remaining foreign oil companies in Libya that had been unaffected by the government's earlier moves to gain control of the petroleum industry here.

The nationalization measures were announced in conjunction with celebrations marking the fourth anniversary of the bloodless military coup that toppled King Idris and brought Khadafy to power.

Tripoli radio, broadcasting from the Libyan capital and monitored here, identified the five American companies affected by the latest nationalization decree as Esso Standard Libya, Mobil Oil Libya, Ltd., Texaco Overseas, Asian Standard Oil Co. of California, and the Libyan-American Petroleum Co. The sixth was the British-Dutch Shell Co. for Exploitation and Production, Libya.

The announcement said compensation would be paid to the companies for the nationalized shares. Each of the companies three-man board, including two Libyans and a company representative, the announcement said.

The radio said the nationalization decision was taken by a now to be administered by a the Revolution Command Council, which Khadafy heads.

The decision has ended an "era of blackmail and domination exercised by the monopolistic companies at the expense of the Libyan people," the radio said.

Recognition for Women in Upstate Hall of Fame

MARGARET CHASE SMITH

The first Women's Rights Convention was held 125 years ago on August 26 in Seneca Falls. Those first leaders in the suffragette movement were instrumental in paving the way for the 19th Amendment to the Constitution which was ratified by Congress on August 26, 1920. It gave women the right to take off their aprons and vote.

MARIAN ANDERSON

This year, on August 26th, honors were accorded 20 women named to the Women's Hall of Fame located in Seneca Falls. On hand to accept the honors was Margaret Chase Smith, former U.S. Senator. Her Steuben glass award was designed for the Women's Hall of Fame by Corning Glass Works. The ceremony was held on the Eisenhower College campus where a national museum and library for contemporary and historical women of achievement will be erected.

Other living women accorded permanent recognition in the Hall of Fame include Marian Anderson, contralto; Helen Hayes, actress; Dr. Helen Brooke Taussig, who developed the curative operation for "blue babies."

Deceased women honored included Jane Addams, noted social reformer; Susan B. Anthony, crusading suffragette; Clara Barton, organizer of the Red Cross; Mary McLeod Bethune, organizer and director of the Division of Negro Affairs, National Youth Administration; Elizabeth Blackwell, first woman in America to earn a medical degree and founder of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children; Pearl S. Buck, author and Pulitzer Prize winner; Rachel Louise Carson, biologist and author of "The Silent Spring."

Also Mary Cassatt, noted painter; Emily Dickinson, leading poet; Amelia Earhart, aviatrix; Alice Hamilton, pioneer doctor in industrial medicine; Helen Keller, for her achievements in social progress; Eleanor Roosevelt, former First Lady honored for her achievements in government and human rights; Florence Sabin, scientist and researcher; Elizabeth Cady Stanton, leader in the fight for women's rights; and Harriet Tubman, often referred to as "the leading conductor of the underground railroad in this country."

Membership in the Women's Hall of Fame Corporation is only five dollars. All members have the right to attend annual meetings held in September and vote in the corporation's affairs.

Anyone desiring to place a name in nomination may do so by requesting a nomination form from the Women's Hall of Fame Inc., P.O. Box 335, Seneca Falls, N.Y. Selections are made by a National Honors Committee of 25 members. The selections announced in August are the first for the Hall of Fame.

Actress Concerned With Inner-Self

By MARIAN CHRISTY

NEW YORK — Pixie-faced Shirley MacLaine, barefoot and leaned, is sitting in the kitchen of her elegant Manhattan apartment, eyes glued to the Watergate hearings on television. She's sitting at the kitchen table, a busty Irma La Douce in a tie-dyed T-shirt and Cartier's love bracelet hugging her wrist, making copious notes on the boggling goings-on being aired on the tube.

The last thing ex-model Shirley — now the movie star who speaks out on critical issues and has established one-to-one contact with China's Mrs. Chou En-lai wants to discuss is fashion.

On the subject: "Look, when you buy clothes, you're interested in plumage. It's a surface manifestation that indicates a value system based on acquiring certain 'things.' Fashion, you see, is the look-at-me insignia that advertises the money you have, the status you've achieved and your position in life. The hell with all that."

Liberal Shirley, who campaigned for Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern, recently led a 12-woman delegation on a six-week tour of the people's Republic of China. She wanted — and got — a firsthand view of the life style based on economic and sexual "equality" among a population of 800 million.

About China's unisex look and its culture shock:

"You're forced to relate to people on a personal level. You've got to ferret out things they've got on their minds and ignore their body coverings. It's startling. The men look like women. The women look like men. But, individuality is initiated through, below-the-surface contact. It's not exactly an American notion."

Shirley MacLaine of Richmond, Va., daughter of Ira O. Beatty, a bandleader turned real estate agent, and her brother, Warren Beatty, hails from a typical middle-class "comfortable" background. Shirley always harbored the traditional American dream — super success above one's environment to reach pinnacles by giving vent to one's talents. Shirley pursued "success" and, predictably, steered herself right into the white-hot heat of intense competition. She emerged a victor. But the makings of competition — innately steeped in either controlled or unbridled ruthlessness — has left a bitter taste supposedly made sweeter by her visit to China.

"China gave me a sense of hope as to what humans can be to each other," she says.

"When competition is abolished the power drive — the need to achieve the kind of success that puts you ahead of your neighbor — well, it just doesn't exist. Life's struggle isn't money and its manifestations. It's collective struggle toward kindness to other humans.

She continues: "It sounds naively altruistic — but it's really a new religion that concerns itself with human values rather than economics. In the final analysis what is 'The Prize' all about? Competition is the death rattle to humanism."

At the moment Shirley is editing films shot in China for a fall television spectacular which, reportedly, is being negotiated for airing on the network which is instantly agreeable to allowing Shirley the final say in editing. She insists it's less a power play and more a desire to shape the tape honestly.

She says: "I really hate hitting the nail on the head. The film doesn't have a strong message but it says so much visually that you don't need a big, important script. It's like Bella Abzug walking into a room in an Adolfo hat. Do you need someone to announce that there's strength in her very stride? That she's staunchly liberated? That she's a fighter? Hell, no."

Shirley, who's pushing 40, is currently subject to a large degree of self-awareness. "I never knew, she says, "that I could influence anybody. She's talking about Shirley-the-celebrity. There's a sensitive side to her nature and, although famous, often suffers moments of piercing loneliness.

"I'm never alone when I'm by myself," she says. "I love to sit down and think. Conventional loneliness doesn't hurt me. It's the awful loneliness brought on by a sudden breakdown in communication between two people. When I feel alone with someone special I extend myself. I reach out. You know I didn't used to do that."

Would Shirley MacLaine ever run for public office? Unlike Jane Fonda, she has worked for change within the system.

"The red tape would drive me ding-bat," she says with a familiar giggle. "But I do wish there were categories in government where people would be appointed to blow the whistle on those in high power. For example, I'd like to be the Ralph Nader of the Supreme Court."

More giggles — followed by stern self-analysis.

Sometimes, Shirley says, she's much too kind and diplomatic. That, in itself, is a built-in deterrent to a government career because: "In life you exist by making certain absolutes. But I listen hard to all the outside nuances — the excuses, the reasonings, the other possibilities. In the end I soften ideas I feel strongly about because I could never hurt anybody. I never say 'I told you so.' It's more like 'oh, well'..."

There's a light side to the heaviness.

Last year Shirley wrote the autobiography, "Don't Fall Off the Mountain." It became a best-seller. "The success of my writing something of value has opened up new vistas for me," she says. She had written the script and kept it hidden in a locked bureau drawer although publisher friends begged her to evaluate it for publication.

"I mulled over the possible rejection and the pain of coping with a no-no — and I just kept the thing locked up," she says. "What really bugged me is that I thought if they rejected the script they were rejecting me."

"I compared it with being in school. If you got good grades, it was the ultimate endorsement. But if you didn't, you were a failure."

Shirley, who's a high-school graduate only, says she has learned about the complex business of living by simply exercising a kind of openness and receptivity which, in turn, magnetized new vistas to her sphere. "I kept my eyes and my ears open and I demonstrated a tremendous respect for fellow humans," she says. "The returns have been unbelievable."

Dartmouth College bestowed the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters on Shirley recently. It was recognition in the supreme sense.

"I used to have a feeling of worthlessness," she confesses. "I wasn't born free-wheeling and independent. My parents wanted to protect me from hurt. So they built all sort of fences around me. I somehow zoomed over each and every fence. It's what taught me to be a revolutionary. In effect, my parents taught me how to jump by putting up the barriers."

And she leaps back to the television set.

Consumer Question Box

By MARGARET DANA

Q. When a person buys a container of pickles and the label says "32 oz. (one qt.)," what does the purchaser have a right to expect in that container? I have come across this brand (label enclosed) and found that when the liquid was poured off the container was only about three-quarters full of pickles. Since the label lists a liquid measure, could the company put in only a slice or two of pickles and call it "32 ounces?" What is right?

A. In processing any food, the liquid used is part of the food. It actually absorbs food elements in many types of processing. In pickles, the liquid is essential to the processing and care of the food, but is not expected to be part of the actual food.

The law requires the food processor to use only what liquid, etc., is necessary for the proper processing of that particular food.

There are cases, of course, where the processor appears to alter the relation of food to liquid, and allows too much liquid for the actual solid food involved. But in the case of the pickles you describe, three-quarters solid food in a quart seems reasonable. The 32 ounces describes the size of the jar.

Q. I have heard about the vegetable protein foods being manufactured to take the place of meat or poultry, or to be mixed with them. Have you any word yet on whether these are being marketed?

A. I understand that several such protein substitutes are now available in many stores. They may be marketed mixed with ground meat, for instance. The resulting mixture is like pure ground beef in taste, nutrient content and texture, but of course is priced considerably less.

Usually the mixture will be 25 per cent hydrated textured vegetable protein and 75 per cent ground beef. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has approved the use of certain vegetable protein foods in school lunches at a 30 per cent level.

Q. I am puzzled by the different names for orange drinks that you find on grocery shelves. Can you tell us what the difference is between "orange drink," for instance, and "orange juice drink?"

A. The Food and Drug Administration has issued rules for the labeling of the following types of orange drinks, with the percentages of real orange juice they must contain: orange juice drink blend, 70-75 per cent; orange juice drink, 35-70 per cent; orange drink, 10-30 per cent; orange-flavored drink, less than 10 per cent orange juice but at least a touch of the real thing.

Q. Last May 27 a well-known store near here put out an ad which offered a "family-size, heavy-duty cast iron Hibachi" with double grill for $3.99, regular price, $5.99. I went to the store shortly after it opened the next day to purchase same and was informed they had not yet come in and was given a "rain check."

The following Sunday the same ad was repeated but with the words "no rain checks." Again I went to the store after it opened and was again told "they had none." I would like to know if you agree that this is false advertising. If so, I would like to contact the proper authorities.

A. This was either intentionally misleading advertising, or simply plain mismanagement. Your state has a very active department of consumer affairs under the state Department of Agriculture. Report to them and to any local businessmen's group, such as a chamber of commerce or merchants' association.

Q. I cannot understand why there is better and more complete nutritional labeling on a can of dog food than of food meant for humans. It seems to me that dogs are better fed than most people and I want to know why a complete listing of all nutrients has not been mandatory on food labels, so that people could be better nourished.

A. Look at it this way: a dog is usually fed once a day, or fed the same dog food all the time. Any pet owner who cares about his animal wants to make sure that in that one-a-day meal, the dog will receive all essential elements.

Human beings do not eat this way. In three meals a day, coffee breaks and snacks, the average human being gets a wide variety of food, which is what makes for good nutrition. Nutrition labeling is on the way, with all elements broken down into amounts by grams, etc.

I doubt if anyone will be better fed by reading, counting and balancing all the details of nutrients contained in each food, than he would be by doing what expert nutritionists have been urging — eating a wide variety of foods each week, to get what your body needs.

Q. We are being told in the area where I live that there may be electricity shortages before the end of the summer, and this might mean we would be without power for our appliances, especially our freezer, for some hours. How can I prepare for this possibility so as not to have food spoiled?

A. A full freezer will stay cold many hours longer than a freezer only a quarter full. The larger the freezer, the longer food in it will stay frozen when the power is off. If you can get dry ice, 25 pounds should hold the temperature of a half-full, 10-cubic-foot freezer below freezing for as long as a couple of days — if you don't open the lid.

You might cover the freezer outside with blankets, plus a layer of newspaper or excelsior between blanket and freezer surface. Don't cover air-vent openings of freezer.

Q. We are planning to buy a new room air conditioner this spring. We would like to know where to get impartial information about what to expect from this product and how to select the right one for our particular need. Can you suggest a source for such information?

A. There are a number of good informative booklets available and usually the dealer will be able to supply several. But you should also have on hand the booklet prepared by various federal government departments on "Room Air Conditioners" (catalogue No. 003A). This has 24 pages and costs 45 cents. It describes how room air conditioners work, how to select the right one for your needs, how to make proper use of one, and how to maintain it correctly. ## Fewer Eggs Go a Long Way

BREAKFAST BLINTZES

With the price of eggs at an all time high, the best trick for housewives is to use fewer eggs but make them do more work for you. This is where pancakes of any type are a speedy answer to the high cost of living. The familiar and popular Blintzes can now make the breakfast table and are particularly great for entertaining in the evening. Try them.

Commandments for Today's Wives

DEAR ABBY: I have been a faithful Abby fan ever since you started writing your column in 1956.

Whenever I would leave the city, I'd ask my housekeeper to save the newspapers, because I didn't want to miss even one of your articles.

To my mind, the best thing you ever wrote was "The Ten Commandments for Wives." Then a few months later you topped yourself with a companion piece titled, "The Ten Commandments for Husbands."

Today we desperately need to be reminded of some old-fashioned rules for making a marriage work. Will you please publish those articles again?

SAN FRANCISCO
DEAR SAN FRANCISCO: I still receive requests for copies of the items you mention. A surprising number of readers have asked for permission to reprint them in their church bulletins. In all humility and with no intended irreverence to Moses, here are my TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR WIVES:

1. Defile not thy body neither with excessive foods, tobacco, nor alcohol, that thy days may be long in the house which thy husband provideth for thee.
2. Putteth thy husband before thy mother, thy father, thy daughter, and thy son, for he is thy lifelong companion.
3. Thou shalt not nag.
4. Permit no one to tell thee that thou art having a hard time of it; neither thy mother, thy sister, nor thy neighbor, for the Judge will not hold her guiltless who letteth another disparage her husband.
5. Thou shalt not withhold affection from thy husband, for every man loveth to be loved.
6. Forget not the virtue of cleanliness and modest attire.
7. Forgive with grace, for who among us does not need forgiveness?

8. Remember that the frank approval of thy husband is worth more to thee than the admiring glances of a hundred strangers.

9. Keep thy home in good order, for out of it cometh the joys of thy old age.

10. Honor the Lord thy God all the days of thy life, and thy children will rise up and call thee blessed.

(Next weekend, "The Ten Commandments for Husbands.")

DEAR ABBY: Am I normal? Or am I ready for the funny farm? I look for bugs and insects in my house, garden, furniture, rugs, and even on my kids. If I should spot an insect in the house (say an ant or a spider), I immediately start a thorough search for more, and I go berserk cleaning, scrubbing, and spraying wherever I think they might be coming from.

If I find an insect I'm not familiar with, I get out my encyclopedia and look up everything I can find on it. I then become even more

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

...it tells you how

Now that granola—the crunchy cereal based on whole grains—has become a national favorite, it's time to introduce you to familia. Familia was developed in Switzerland and, although it's not as crunchy, contains even more naturally nutritious ingredients than granola. Jud Eagle, a MOTHER reader from Oregon, likes it so much that he makes up 15 pounds at a time. Here's his recipe:

1 lb. oats	1 lb. sunflower seeds
2 lbs. wheat flakes	1/2 lb. pumpkin seeds
2 lbs. rye flakes	1 lb. sesame seeds
1/3 lb. soy flour	1 pkg. chia seeds
1 lb. wheat germ	2 lbs. raisins
1 oz. rice polish	1 lb. dried fruit
1 lb. soy lecithin	1 lb. nuts

Jud says you can buy the rice polish, soy lecithin and sunflower, pumpkin and chia seeds at a health food store. Any large market or food co-op should be able to supply the rest of the ingredients.

Mr. Eagle originally figured only on using his homemade familia as a nutritional supplement to his city diet, but he's since found that it's an ideal backpacking and camping food. "You may eat it cooked as a hot cereal, uncooked as a cold cereal, in breads and cookies or munch it as it is," he says. "Supplemented with fresh vegetables and fruits, familia contains everything your body needs to stay healthy. It's a perfect survival food."

For more whole grain recipes, including directions for preparing a stick-to-the-ribs breakfast for less than a penny a serving, send 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS, in care of this paper. Ask for Reprint No. 75, WHEAT FOR MAN.

ABOUT ANTIQUES

Gold Plated Watches

"These watches are bought largely by traders who wish to drive a good bargain regardless of the value they give."

Talk about negative salesmanship! The above confession is revealed in 1897 Sears Roebuck Catalog's section dealing with Gold Plated Watches. They also uncover the disquieting fact that these particular types of watches "are made with less care and largely by small boys and girls." This was probably incentive enough to persuade their customers to purchase the better quality gold-filled watches.

The gold-filled watch case was essentially made from a gold sheet with some composition material in its center (for economy). The Gold Plated Watch was made of sheet brass and electroplated with a very thin layer of gold. The method was simple: the completed watch case was immersed in a special chemical solution and subjected to an electric current that then deposited the gold layer over the surfaces. Only the thinnest plating was possible and could not be depended upon to remain on the case for more than three years, with normal handling.

The movements for these plated watches were imported and available with either key or stem windings. Although good timekeepers, Sears, Roebuck offered no warranty — other than that they would reach the purchaser in good condition.

Some models originally sold for as little as $2.75. One should expect to pay much more for a Gold Plated Watch on today's antique market — especially if it is in good operating condition and still retains a reasonable coating of gold. Don't mistake one of these for the more expensive gold-filled version, however. They may look alike at a first glance, but there remains an important difference!

HINTS FROM *Heloise*By HELOISE
YOURSELF COMING ON A BUDGET

Dear Heloise:

Everyone has their own little tricks for budgeting their grocery money and this is how mine works:

We are a family of four and I spend around $113 a month. We eat well, I might add, but my system will only work for the family who doesn't think they have to have meat ever night.

First of all, I buy my groceries every two weeks with no trips in between.

We do not buy soda pop except when we are expecting company and we never buy snack foods such as potato chips.

I've discovered that small cookies go further than large ones, and since cookies are frequently sold by weight, I look for the small ones. To children, two cookies are two cookies, the size doesn't really matter.

If a package of meat has a price on it that begins with one dollar I expect the package to last us one meal. If it begins with two dollars, I look to see if it will last two meals or I do not buy it. We each have one serving of meat, and that's plenty.

Once in a while I fix supper for a dollar. That gives me extra money for other nights. A few of these are pancakes and hash, ham scraps and cabbage, creamed eggs and biscuits (vegetables added sometimes) and tuna casserole.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

I have a sneaky way of vacuum cleaning.

I put the television in the room to be done, bring in the sweeper and get it ready for use. I turn on the portable TV to my favorite program and begin enjoying it.

When the "you-know-what" comes on, I jump to the vacuum cleaner, turn it on and go to work. I peek occasionally and when the program comes back on, off goes the sweeper and I leap to my chair and watch.

When one room is finished, the TV, the sweeper and I move to the next one.

Mrs. A.G.D.

Glory, glory! You're a real commercial cleaner!

Love,

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I recently read in your column where a lady uses a pattern tracer for cutting noodles.

Here's how I cut mine and in a matter of seconds:

I roll dough to desired thinness and let dry uncovered for one to two hours.

Then sprinkle lightly with flour and roll as for a jelly roll.

With a sharp knife, slice as you would rolled cookie dough. The noodles may be sliced as wide or as narrow as you desire.

After the entire roll is sliced, pick up as many strips (at the starting edge) as you can hold between the fingers and the palm of the hand and shake gently.

They are all unrolled and ready to cook or to continue drying up to two more hours if desired. They may also be frozen after being cut with no defrosting necessary.

Mildred

Dear Heloise: Since my tailor's chalk was misplaced and I really needed a marker in a hurry, I used a new piece of blackboard chalk tapered to a fine point with my long-bladed potato peeler.

This could be helpful to the sewing ladies.

KATHERINE CALABA

THIS COLUMN is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of The Daily Freeman. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Benedictine Spiritual Leader

SISTER KATHLEEN

KINGSTON The recent election of Sister Kathleen Sharkey as Prioress of the Benedictine Sisters of Elizabeth, N.J., and as president of the Benedictine Corporation has been announced.

A native of Bayonne, N.J., Sister Kathleen now assumes the spiritual leadership of the 131 Sisters of the Benedictine Community for a four-year term of office. She succeeds Mother Cornelia Boyle, well-known in the Kingston area community, whose term of office has expired.

The new prioress was recently welcomed as a guest at an outdoor dinner party hosted by the Sisters at Benedictine Hospital and attended by the Benedictine Hospital Board of Directors, their wives and husbands.

Archbishop Thomas A. Boland presided at the election of Sister Kathleen, who chose as an option granted a prioress, to retain the title of "Sister."

Sister Kathleen's election was followed by a Mass, con- celebrated by Archbishop Boland and Msgr. Theodore Bonelli.

A native of Bayonne, N.J., Sister Kathleen is the daughter of the late Mary and Daniel Sharkey. She attended Benedictine Academy, Elizabeth, N.J., and received her BS degree from Seton Hall University, South Orange, and her masters degree from Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

Sister Kathleen has been secretary of the community and teacher of French at Benedictine Academy. She has also served on the faculty of St. Anthony's Grammar School, Washington, D.C., St. Michael's, Cranford, N.J., and Sacred Heart High School, Elizabeth, where she was principal.

Faith Song Fete At Dutchess Site

RHINEBECK choirs from local churches soloists, instrumentalists in- cluding traditional, folk, and contemporary music, and community singing led by Richard Totman.

The avowed purpose of the festival is to proclaim the Christian faith through the medium of music, a way of demonstrating Christian unity despite the variety of churches and methods of expressing the faith.

Steering Committee for the festival is comprised of the Rev. Ian Reid, pastor of the Rhinebeck Methodist Church; Donald Bank, member of the Church Council at the Third Lutheran Reformed Church of Rhinebeck; William O'Neill, deacon at St. John's Reformed Church of Upper Red Hook; and the Rev. Roger Leonard, pastor of St. John's.

A "Faith in Song Festival" will bring church people from Red Hook and Rhinebeck churches together at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds Sept. 9.

The gathering, scheduled from 2:5 p.m., is part of the year-long Key '73 program, a nationwide ecumenical effort sponsored by both Roman Catholic and Protestants.

In Northern Dutchess, this has been done in Ecumenical Worship Services, Lenten Study Groups, Home Bible Groups, door to door canvasses of religious preference, and the coming Faith in Song Festival at the fairgrounds.

Master of ceremonies will be Bill Sacher, a disc jockey with WGHQ in Kingston, who is an active Christian layman. There will be ecumenical choirs, of St. John's.

Getting It Together

By TERRI F. JACKSON

JUST THINKING: Maybe everybody is not aware of the fact that there is a New York State law against discrimination, and that includes refusing service to anybody. There seems to be a slight problem in this area of that law at the Trailways Bus Terminal luncheon counter, and also a problem of price fluctuations. We realize that there is a spiraling of food costs, but on a daily basis? Why should service be denied to a customer who complains about these price changes? We have purchased food there, and we have noticed that there is a difference in what we pay each time, so have others. Someone should check out what is going on, and soon... there are a lot of unhappy customers and our complaints are coming from both races, so there is definitely something wrong.

IMPROVIZATIONS: On a recent "Different Shades of Black" show we interviewed Tyrone Crabbe of Newburgh in his capacity as the assistant director of Orange House. We are very proud and happy to let you know that he has been selected by the Newburgh City Council to fill a vacancy. Tyrone is the first black to serve in his community, and he will seek a full four-year term this fall. Our sincere congratulations—Mr. and Mrs. Knight of Sunset Gardens are the proud parents of a lovely baby girl!

Dignitaries from all over the state are expected to attend the Black Arts Cultural Festival being presented at the New York Eastern Correctional Facility Sept. 15. This event was originated by the inmates, and is being carried out by them, and the Administration is really pitching in to help them make it a success.

On Aug. 19 we made our way down to Peekskill to be the afternoon speaker for the annual Women's Day Service at the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, and we want you to know that hospitality was "the name of the game" at the church. My family and I were given royal treatment, and it was a pleasure to meet so many warm people. The Rev. and Mrs. Ernest E. Drake and their congregation went all out to make us feel at home, and we did. It was an added pleasure to have Mrs. Mildred Bailey of New York City go with us.

If there is a group willing to get together for a theatre trip to N.Y.C. for the "Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope" show, I have access to a block of discount tickets, but they must be used before Sept. 30.

The Dutchess World Trade, Inc. of Wappingers Falls is in the process of moving into a building in Poughkeepsie which will house an Afro-American Arts Boutique, and offices. Right on, and congratulations.

Brick Needs Some Care, Too

By MR. FIX

People who specify brick when they are house hunting or planning to build a home generally are interested in the fact that brick requires less maintenance than wood.

But no home, even brick, is maintenance free. While you will not have to paint your house as often this doesn't mean that you can ignore the place.

Trim will need painting just as it does on any house and it will have to be done with great care to avoid splashing paint on the brick. Use plenty of drop cloths and work carefully. Use regular trim colors and if the trim is white, use a white designed for trim use, not a regular white house paint.

Ordinary house paint chalks. Use a non-chalking white to avoid stains on the brick. (So called self-cleaning paints are paints that chalk.)

One problem you should be aware of is crumbling mortar. Brick walls and brick foundations of wood houses should be checked for mortar joints that are starting to crumble. Neglect will cause damp spots on indoor walls.

Use a screwdriver to probe mortar joints for loose material. Remove loose mortar with a hammer and chisel, leaving sound areas alone. Clean out fragments with a wire brush.

Repairing mortar joints, unlike painting, can be done a little at a time. Use a prepared mortar mix and mix only what you will use in a short time. The mix comes in dry form and water is added.

Before you do any mixing, hose down the surface so that it is completely wet. If you apply fresh mortar to a dry surface it will dry too quickly and crumble. If this happens clean out the joint and start again. Remember to wet it down this time.

Apply fresh mortar with a pointing trowel. Use the end of the trowel to indent the mortar slightly while it is still fresh. This not only looks better, it helps shed water.

Keep water and rags handy to wipe off mortar that gets smeared on the brick.

Keep new mortar joints wet for several days. Adjust the hose nozzle for a fine spray.

Brick steps are another place where trouble can start. If the mortar joint has been allowed to deteriorate too much there can be damage because of the weight on the steps. This will result in loose bricks, even cracking.

Slight wear requires only the treatment described above. But if you find bricks that are wobbling or breaking, then other methods are in order.

Break away the mortar so that you can remove the brick. Clean off the rest of the mortar, both from the steps and from the brick you have removed. Set the brick in a pail of water to soak. Except for the side that will show, cover the brick all around with mortar and set in place. Finish filling the joints with mortar.

After the brick has had a chance to stand for a time, smooth the mortar joint. Keep wet for several days. Do not allow the repaired area of the steps to be used for several days or until you are sure the new brick is soundly set.

Definite Lines With This Home

By JACK McLENEY

PROVIDENCE, R.I.

Many prospective homeowners are pre-occupied with open planning in modern home designing; however, there are still many families that prefer definite lines of separation through the area of the kitchen, dining and living rooms. Today's feature, called "The Elmcroft" caters to the latter group.

"The Elmcroft" plan is a two-bedroom dwelling in which the kitchen, dining and living rooms are reserved for the exclusive purposes for which their name implies. Nevertheless, there is a slight suggestion of openness at the wide entrance from foyer hall to living room and from living room to formal dining room. The "U"-shape kitchen is strictly a work space, which means that the dining room will receive continued use. The two left side bedrooms are larger than average, well cross-vented, and each with big wardrobes. The sleeping area is readily accessible to a full bath by way of a short center hall.

Excellent closet space is contained in the floor plan, consisting of three large wardrobes, linen closet, utility closet, storage closet and a broom closet over the basement staircase.

The exterior uses conventional windows and shingles all around, and the basic house, excluding the breezeway and garage, is 44 feet long. There are 1,172 square feet of living space.

Complete building plans are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon.

Wonderful Items For the Kitchen

The world of kitchens is full of wonderful things.

Take appliances, for instance. You know about self-cleaning and electronic ovens, and about smooth surface cooktops. They've been widely advertised. Are you aware of all these other current conveniences?

The indoor grill with built-in exhaust system; the built-in food center that incorporates blender, mixer, knife sharpener, ice crusher, fruit juicer, shredder slicer and meat grinder; the range with warming shelf; the cook and clean center that combines vent hood, oven cooktop and dishwasher in only 30 inches of space; the undercounter freezer only 34 inches high that holds more than 150 pounds of frozen food; the portable ice maker that requires no water or drain connections; the all-in-one kitchen center that in 69 inches contains refrigerator, gas or electric range and oven, sink and storage compartment; the portable dishwasher with a cutting board as its top.

One way to find out about them is to visit the showrooms of local kitchen dealers. Anyone identified by the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers (AIKD) emblem in your telephone directory has at least two complete kitchens on display. He has to, to maintain his membership in this national trade group.

If you really want the best lawn on the block, be prepared to spend money, hours and hard work. Grass can be truly beautiful if you want to pay the price.

But if you want an attractive expanse of lawn, few weeds and time to enjoy home and garden here are the secrets of a basic beauty lawn.

Use mowing strips to keep grass in a neat line around flower beds, shrub borders and other cultivated area. Walks, bricks set level with the soil, rotproof wood all work well.

Avoid small, chopped up areas of lawn which are difficult to cut, especially with large power mowers.

Remove grass from around the base of individual trees. Replace it with permanent organic mulch, ground covers or gravel as mulch. This saves hand trimming time and avoids bruising tree trunks when mowing close in.

Pick the right mowing equipment. Don't spend dollars on a 14 horsepower tractor for a quarter acre. Match the mower to your size lawn. If you garden extensively a riding tractor with other attachments can be a real help.

Consider underground watering. New plastic hose and sprinkler units can be installed in one day. They come with timers to apply the right amount of water, then shut off. These inexpensive units save hauling hoses, overwatering, cutting hoses with mowers and other problems.

Feed and weed in one shot. Newer fertilizers are programmed to control lawn weeds with a selective herbicide. They also have slow or timed release nutrients. In this way your grass won't be burned. Instead, it will receive the right amounts of nutrients over a longer period. This means, no spurt in growth with a lag later on.

Planning your lawn-care is a simple, effective way to achieve basic beauty with less care. That leaves you more time to enjoy it, family and friends. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Closet on Wheels Solves Dilemmas

If you are subject to job transfer, or rent a house, you've probably discounted making permanent improvements. But the need for an extra storage closet lingers on.

Build a roll-away closet, ready to exit your temporary dwelling when you do. Plan the unit in any dimension, perhaps sized to tuck under basement stairs, behind a furnace or in a corner of the garage.

Construction will be simple: the roll-away closet is merely a box with doors on casters. The unit should be structurally sound and constructed of durable materials to be worth its labor and transportation.

For storage purposes, the closet is most valuable when lined with aromatic red cedar. The raw wood, impervious to decay, paralyzes moth larvae with its pungent aroma. To man, it's refreshingly fragrant.

Exterior of the closet should be attractive prefinished paneling to seal in the red cedar's aroma. Paneling is available to complement any decor.

The roll-away's interior will be determined by the shape of the closet. A unit 5-feet high would accommodate most hanging garments. A short, wide unit would be fitted with divided shelves or "pigeonholes" to accommodate folded garments.

Overall plan is to construct a frame for each of the sides, attach the cedar lining, bolt the sides together (excepting doors), and mount outside paneling. Doors are built separately and hung in place.

Use 2x4's to construct frames for the back, side walls, top and bottom, using support members where needed. Nail the cedar lining directly to the frame. The cedar lining has a tongue-and-groove feature for easy application. Its 3/4" thick, 4" wide, and comes in lengths up to 4 feet.

Attach bracket for clothes dowel and fit with shelves before exterior paneling.

For doors, construct a frame from 1x4's, using 1x2's for vertical support. Nail cedar lining to one side and prefinished paneling to the others. Mount doors with three hinges each and a magnetic latch.

Because of the weight factor, use heavy duty casters mounted to the floor frame at each corner.

Easy Add-On

It is relatively easy and attached garage, reports the inexpensive to extend a National Better Heating-Cooling hydronic (modern hot water) Council. Flexible, finger-size home heating system to a tubing is easy to snake through finished attic, add-on room or floors and walls.

Sunday, September 2

Monday, September 3

Tuesday, September 4

GENERAL TENDENCIES: One of the best Sundays in a long while to decide the overall aims for your talents. Use breath of mind and spirit in working out a plan of action whereby you can broaden your horizons and enlarge your consciousness. Show your openmindedness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have fine hunches today that will help you tune in to the highest philosophy of life and know how to govern your life better in the future. Cooperate more with mate and get better results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to talk over with associates how to have better understanding between you. Seek to improve harmony with the public in general, also. Avoid one who does not have your best interests at heart.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find some opportunity to help those whose loyalty is unquestioned. Plan time for improving your health. Evening can be very interesting from the social standpoint. Avoid one who is unfriendly to your interests.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) This can be a particularly delightful day and p.m. if you improve your thinking along philosophical or cultural lines. Please good friends by complementing them. Show kindness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan just how to improve family life so there can be more happiness and prosperity in the future. Make the home smoother-running and charming and please all who dwell with you. Avoid one who gossips too much.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) State your ideas to others and have far better communication with them. Attend the services that inspire you. Set into the studies that are really enlightening. Have fun tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to plan how to add to present prosperity so you need not have to worry so much about yourself or family. Listen to what financial experts suggest. Attend some worthwhile social affair in p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are particularly charming today and should gad about socially to the right places where you can get the results you desire. Make new friends who are talented. Steer clear of one who wants to cramp your style.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good day to converse confidentially with those who can help you have a more prosperous and happy life in the future. Listen to the voice of your conscience and be prompted about what to do. Avoid one who argues too much.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Listen to what a determined pal has to suggest so your life becomes more profitable and satisfying in all ways in the future. Attend social affairs so you make worthwhile new acquaintances. Learn to be a good conversationalist.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young people full of all kinds of ideas, so it behooves parents to teach early to accept only the best ideas and put them across. Otherwise your child could become a jack-of-all-trades and master none, and could even venture higher-ups everywhere, as well as your household. Some wise and kind discipline early is important as well as teaching to work by giving small duties to perform while young. Religion a must here.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fine day to devise a better method for engaging in sports, games and other recreations you enjoy. Study new ways and means by which to make your dreams come true. Be alert to recognize practical solutions in the days ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can easily make some outstanding deals in either buying or selling today, so take data you need and make the most of present influences. Relieve tensions by having fun tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Money matters are on your mind now and you can do much to have a greater abundance in the near future by acting wisely where expenses are concerned. Show more devotion to loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contact friends and those who have much wisdom and experience so that you learn more about your line of endeavor. Social gathering can be very pleasurable now. Cut down on Expenses.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she can easily achieve fame in life, since the mind is brilliant and the body is robust. Schooling will be a breeze since there is a natural ability to comprehend quickly. Teach the importance of the spiritual mind and your progeny will become most successful and a great inspiration to others.

Bad Break and Bad Play, Too
By Oswald & James Jacoby

We don't object to South's opening spade bid. He did have 12 high card points such as they were. Nor do we object to his continuing to game after his partner gave him a limit jump raise. Two suiters tend to produce lots of tricks.

We do object to the way he played the hand. If you want to bid strongly you should learn to play strongly also. South ruffed the second club and led the king of spades. East took the trick with his ace and led back the eight of hearts.

There was no way left for South to make his contract. He complained bitterly about his bad luck. It was bad luck, but it also was bad play.

South wasn't worried about 2-2 or 3-1 trump break. Only four trumps in one hand could hurt him and if anyone was going to hold four trumps it would almost surely be East. West had bid hearts. He had also shown up with a club suit headed by ace-king. It would be a warm day in January at the North Pole before West held all four spades.

South should have led a spade to dummy's queen. Assuming East continued clubs, South would discard a heart. He would have to lose it later in any event. Then he could ruff the next club in dummy with the nine of spades; led spades twice through East to pick up the 10 and eight and wind up making his contract in spite of the bad break.

TEEN SCENE: The Wardrobe Word Is Out for Autumn

by LEI

The word is in from the Paris designers, and favorite new fashions for teens for back-to-school will probably be—jeans, jerseys, and jackets. There is fashion, and then there are clothes one wears. The big test of any fashion is how soon and how well it translates itself into something that can really get into life—including hayrides, social studies class, and a Friday night date. Fortunately, teens tend to wear the same things to all three. And to everything else except funerals and, occasionally, weddings.

This fall will probably be a time of subtle change in the regular garb of the school-heading teener. Somewhere along the line, the Army fatigue look, for instance, got a little fatigued, and the novelty tee-shirt has become the lowest common denominator. Miniskirts are ending with a slow death—not being replaced by maxis and midis, but by a more classic look in skirts—there is absolutely no way you can make a tweed pleated skirt of wool that comes eight inches above the knee. Or, for that matter, eight inches below the knee. The conservative material and cut can only be interpreted in a conventional length—like two inches one way or the other from the knee.

The whole feeling of the clothes this season is one of a classic look—and this includes everyday wear. Just plain bellbottoms suddenly look rather—oh—just plain. Baggy jeans are more conservative, and balance the small torso look much better. Suddenly, straight-leg jeans, either plain or with turned-up cuffs, look right with the nostalgic saddle-shoes and sweaters look of the fifties revival—and also with the workshirt rustic look that is left over from last year.

That nostalgia has had a very subtle effect on teen wardrobes. Obviously, very few teens are going to wear that wool plaid skirt we mentioned into school, or the zoot-suit revival for fellows. However, those tight little shrink sweaters are almost a uniform. Back in the fifties, all sweaters were tight little shrinks after a month, because they were all wool, and the first time you washed them, they turned into mittens. These days it's done with elastic, and that's groovy, if you like enough give to breathe.

A revival of Hawaiian shirts went over like a revival of diphtheria, but the look of the big flowers in the strange colors remained. So did the look of applique, from party-wear introduced last year. Result? The flower applique jeans are replacing the embroidered jeans as the latest night-and day funky live-in outfit.

It looks like the parka will be around for awhile, but interpreted in some of those new nostalgic patterns—tweeds, plaids, and even some sweater-knit snorkles. For those who still believe in the automobile, those chunky little sawed-off furry jackets with the knit cuffs and waist will be popular, but those who walk or bike find that they leave a lot of leg out in the chill.

There will still be fun in fashion, but not the Warhol-plastic billboard insanity that has existed for several years. No more Mr. Natural jerseys and Snoopy windbreakers. Instead, the classic feeling of crocheted sweaters with whimsical designs worked right in with the stitches. Hats are back—even little knit caps in wild colors. However, colors tend to be more muted and even a little murky—although not necessarily dark. This will be another winter you'll be seeing a lot of light colors—ivory, dark pink, beige.

Fake furs, clobber shoes, and sleeveless sweaters will definitely be big parts of the schoolwear for teens. Also wallets that are very, very flat. The price of clothes is up, but a fat wallet bulges in baggy jeans anyway.

County Leaders in Syracuse Fete

KINGSTON Each county in New York was invited to recommend a number of outstanding 4-H members for participation in a variety of youth activities at the New York State Fair in Syracuse. This year's State Fair is being held Aug. 28 through September 3.

After consideration of their subject matter strengths, leadership abilities, ages, and participation in 4-H programs, 16 Ulster County 4-H'ers were chosen by the State 4-H Staff to work at the Fair. Those who attended a training session in Syracuse, and who are participating at the fair are:

DEMONSTRATIONS. Lauren Reisenauer, High Falls; Belinda McClurg, Sawkill; and Linda Rice, West Hurley will be giving formal and informal demonstrations on a variety of subjects from "Backpacking" to "Feeding the Birds."

TEEN EVALUATION. Barbara Myer, West Hurley, will have the opportunity to work with 4-H judges and learn evaluation techniques.

YOUTH LEADERSHIP. Rebecca Warren, Hurley and Debbie Mandic, Tilton, will assume the responsibilities of hostesses.

MEAT SCIENCE. Kathy and Chris Ruth, Sawkill, will be demonstrating the preparation of Weiner Schnitzel and flank steak.

CHERRY DESSERTS. Bonnie Barton, Sawkill will present a demonstration using cherries in a dessert at the New York State Fair. Cherry Growers Association Booth. STATE DRESS REVUE. Linda Crisman, Stone Ridge; Karen Ruth, Sawkill; and Karen McClurg, Sawkill, will model in the State 4-H Dress Revue, Saturday and today. These 4-H members are to be congratulated for being selected to participate at the Fair. Along with these 12 girls, 65 other 4-H members were selected to either exhibit their 4-H projects in the areas of home economics, horticulture, vegetables or handyman, show their horses, dairy or beef cattle, or dogs, or participate in the tractor driving contest.

Sewing Projects Pay

It doesn't take years of sewing experience to create a modern wardrobe for yourself. New products and new fabrics have made home sewing easier and more enjoyable.

The 786,000 4-H girls and boys enrolled in the national 4-H clothing programs are using needles and thread and sewing machines, fabric, patterns and notions to create clothing that's appealing, attractive and comfortable for themselves, their friends and others.

Supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service and sponsored by Coats & Clark, Inc., the 4-H clothing program helps 4-H'ers become knowledgeable consumers. They learn to buy fabrics, sewing equipment, notions, accessories. Awareness of new fabrics and new products related to home sewing and the care of clothing are stressed in the program.

Along with developing sewing skills and having the satisfaction of wearing garments they've made, 4-H'ers also share what they've learned with others.

Carol Myers, a 1972 national winner in the 4-H clothing program, taught sewing techniques to 92 low income girls in her home town of Winston-Salem, N. C. The program she began was so

Taking a Gamble In the Classroom

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — It's a sure bet that 40 students at a little Widener College felt the odds were stacked against them in Jill Masterson's class.

But they were game for something different, and so was the petite Miss Masterson, a 32-year-old professor with a doctorate in psychology.

The course was entitled Gambling 729. What else? Two trap tables and a roulette wheel built by a student, plus some card tables, were set up in a long narrow, carpeted room in the basement of the campus library.

Dr. Masterson even had loaded dice and marked cards one class session.

Gambling 729 was her idea for a one-month, one-credit course which the college features each year. But she didn't think she'd get the approval of the program committee, which has final say on all courses.

"I thought there would be adverse reaction," she said. "But there was none. They just approved it and said they were happy to see something jazzy."

Widener has 1,500 fulltime day students, but there was room for only 40 in Gambling 729. Dozens were turned away.

"This was a fun and games type of course, a non-academic experience but one in which the students learn something," said Dr. Masterson. "There has never been a course this far out at Widener. It's a learning experience like a trip to an art museum, but something in which there is less testing and less anxiety."

"I devised the idea because I wanted to study gambling," she admits. "It's a research idea and I intend to publish the data that I gather by watching people bet."

She began by giving a questionnaire to those who were signed for the course and those who couldn't be accepted. This spring, she plans to test both groups again to see if her students picked up any compulsive gambling habits.

"The students just love it," said the Enterprise, Ore., native. "This type of course is becoming more popular because college experience should be relevant to the student's needs and desires, and more oriented to the contemporary problems of society.

"Psychologists are interested in people's conception of chance as a research problem, just to see how the human psyche functions."

"It would bother me very much if I see that I'm sending out a new generation of gamblers. Still, I think it's more honest to study gambling than to sweep it under the table."

So far, she's learned that neither the amount of money involved nor the number of games tried are important. Gambling becomes compulsive, she says, when a person stays in games for long periods of time, lets gambling interfere with other aspects of life and bets money budgeted for other living expenses.

A student could fail Dr. Masterson's course by skipping too many classes, failing to do required work or by not taking part in the testing program. But he had one sure bet: he couldn't lose any money.

"We use chips," explained Dr. Masterson.

Cornell Trail Route

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — The road to higher education will begin somewhere along the 75-mile Finger Lakes Trail in Upstate New York for a small group of Cornell University freshmen.

Eleven freshmen, accompanied by two Cornell guides, will spend a week together backpacking on the trail system as part of the university's Wilderness Reflections pre-orientation program.

The program, begun last year by the Office of the Dean of Students, is intended to provide incoming students information about Cornell and to meet several friends before arriving on campus.

Kingston Teen Cited

KINGSTON Kingston teenager, Dale Bea Edge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Edge, 32 Webster Street, was ranked second highest Junior Girl Unit member at the National Convention of the Ladies Auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars in New Orleans recently. Dale was cited for outstanding service to VFW Auxiliary, community and school leadership.

A charter member of her Junior Girls Unit 1386, the honoree received an engraved silver Revere Bowl. She has served over a period of nine years in both Junior Girls Unit and state, as guard, conductress, junior and senior vice-presidents, as well as state patriotic instructor.

"I am proud to be an American and belong to such a wonderful organization," Dale commented. "It solemnly binds young and old into the brotherhood of men who have fought for America on land, on sea and in the air."

In Dale's concern for disabled veterans, she has sold Buddy Poppies, assisted in preparation and distribution of Thanksgiving fruit baskets for veterans, made Santa Claus and bookmark favors for, and visited with patients at Castle Point Veterans Hospital. She remembered the men with holiday cards and cookies.

Dale has participated in the annual Memorial Dock Services for those who died at sea, and carried the auxiliary colors in the Statue of Liberty birthday ceremonies in 1968, 1972 and 1973. In addition, she carried the colors in the Loyalty Day parade.

During each year as a member of her girls unit, Dale has remembered all the children and house mothers at the VFW National Home, Eaton Rapids, Mich., with cards and gifts on birthdays, Thanksgiving and Easter. She had made needed articles for elderly patients in nursing homes and delivered them at Christmas time.

At Kingston High School she conducted an Americanism program for students presenting awards to Veterans Day poster winner. A 1973 graduate of KHS, she left this week to enter Hudson Valley Community College at Troy, where she plans to major in radiological technology.

Marist Student On Expedition

POUGHKEEPSIE Miss Karen J. Wieda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wieda, 186 Clocks Boulevard, Amityville, and a junior at Marist College, was accepted for the Charles Darwin Research Institute's first all-student sponsored Expedition to the Ecuadorian Mainland and the Galapagos Islands this summer. The institute is located at Dana point, Calif.

The primary purpose of the Expedition was to study the unique flora and fauna of the Galapagos Islands, where Darwin's theories on evolution were formulated. The Galapagos Islands are located astride the equator, 600 miles off the coast of Ecuador. Miss Wieda was selected upon the basis of her academic achievements, personal background and interests in studying and preserving these unique volcanic islands of rare cacti, tree-sunflowers, giant tortoises, iguanas, seals, penguins, and numerous birds such as the Blue-footed Booby, Darwin's Finches, and the Flightless Cormorant.

In the islands, subjects studied included Oceanology, Ornithology, Geology, Botany, Zoology and Ecology. Upon return to the mainland, final examinations were held and preliminary research reports given so that Miss Wieda, a biology major at Marist, and fellow researchers would be eligible to receive 20 academic credits given via the University of Guayaquil at the end of the expedition.

Advice to First Graders from the Experts

"Be sure you know how to tie your shoes."

What advice would you give first graders who are just starting school? This was the question The Mini Page asked older boys and girls. One fifth grade student wrote, "Remember, we were all first graders, too. We've been through it." So here is some advice from the "experts." If you have any first graders at your house, will you please read this to them? Thanks.

"The main thing is to do your best and try."

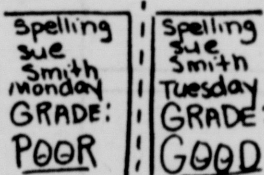

"At least try the school lunches. I think they are very good."

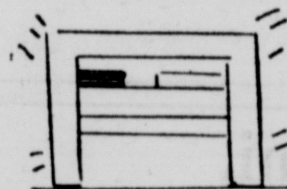

"Stay in your seat when your teacher is out of the room."

"Be nice to everybody."

"If you don't do well today, try again tomorrow."

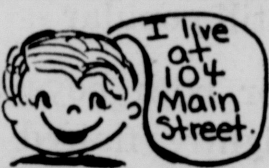

"Have a clean desk when you leave in the afternoon."

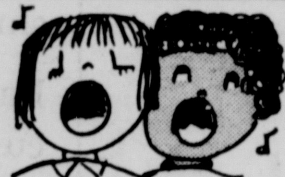

"Brush your teeth and your hair."

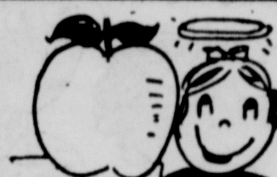

"Get to the bus stop on time."

"When you have music, sing."

"Be nice to your teacher."

"Never yell in the room."

"Write neatly so you won't have to do it over."

"Learn to listen."

"Learn your teacher's name."

"Don't bug your teacher too much."

"Get to bed early."

Girls clothes: Pants are still in style, but dresses are the news. You will be seeing more of them. They are the classic, shirt style with tunnel and elasticized waists. Skirts are popular this year, too. The jumper is back.

Boys clothes: Turtle neck shirts are good this year, too. The wool vest or shrink is still popular

Pants: For both boys and girls, the cuffed, slightly flaired pant style is news. Pants fit around the waist. You won't be seeing as many hip-huggers.

United States and Russia Plan to Join Spacecraft

In 1975, the United States and Russia plan to join two vehicles in space. The spacecraft to be joined will be the Soviet Soyuz (Sah-youz) and the American Command/Service Module. The Soyuz will be launched first. About seven hours later the American Command/Service Module will be launched. There are many problems in such a shot. Spaceships will have to be specially built so they will fit together. The astronauts will have to learn each other's language. It is hoped that this meeting will lead to future joint space missions.

What You'll need:

- Two tin cans
- String

What to do:

1. Punch small holes in the bottom of each can. Pull one end of a 30-foot string through each hole and tie a knot at the end. Stretch the string so it does not sag.
2. Talk into the can. Have a friend listen at the other end. Can you hear a clear message?

This proves that sound waves can be carried through solids (the string) as well as through the air.

Animal of the Week: The Polar Bear

The polar bear is on the endangered species list. This means that there are very few of them left. They could become extinct unless protected. Man has hunted them for food and clothing. Their bones have been used to make knives and other utensils.

Polar bears live on ice chunks in the freezing waters of the Arctic Ocean. Some go ashore on the mainland of Alaska, Canada, Siberia or Greenland. Others go ashore on islands in the Arctic and never come to the mainland at all.

The fur on the bottom of their feet enables them to walk or run on ice. They can run as fast as 20 miles an hour. They can swim as fast as six miles an hour. Polar bears are very fierce and are second in size only to the Alaskan brown bear. They can weigh over 1,500 pounds and can grow to be nearly 10 feet tall. They are excellent hunters that eat fish, seals and walruses.

Michael Word plays a parolee who'd rather never go back to prison, and Rochelle Haas has the role of divorcee engaged in a custody battle over her children with her ex-husband. Both give excellent performances in "Striva," which played to sell-out houses opening weekend.

The cast of "Striva" romps in the woods during break in performances. And a highly professional cast it is when it takes to the stage in the tragi-comedy, performed in theatre-in-the-round style. (Kathy Butterfield photos)

The 'Albany'-Has a Narrow Escape

By CAPTAIN WILLIAM O. BENSON

The old Hudson River Day Line was at its peak, both in the number of steamboats in operation and in the number of passengers carried, during the 1920's. In the last half of that decade, the company had seven steamers in operation on the river.

The Day Line for many years had three landings at New York City — piers at the foot of Desbrosses Street, West 41st Street and West 129th Street. In 1929 the landing at Desbrosses Street was given up and the 41st Street pier became the New York terminus. With seven steamers in operation, the company used two piers there — Pier 81 at the foot of 41st Street and adjacent Pier 80 to berth the vessels. At the time, I was a deckhand on the steamer "Albany."

One night during August 1929, the "Albany" lay at the north outer berth of Pier 80, tied up for the night. The "DeWitt Clinton" came in and landed, bow up at the end of the Pier 81. After unloading her passengers, she was scheduled to back around the south end of the pier and lay in at the south outer berth of Pier 81, directly across the slip from the "Albany."

While unloading her passengers, about 10 p.m., a heavy thunder shower came up, accompanied by a very strong northwest wind. Captain J. Rodney Magee, under the circumstances, thought it best to get a tug to hold the "Clinton" 's bow up to the wind and tide while backing around the end of the pier. So the Day Line called Cornell's office and they sent the tug "Bear" down in charge of Captain John Barton.

After the last passengers had gone ashore and when the "DeWitt Clinton" started to back around the wind and the tide really caught her and the head line she had out to the pier parted. She immediately began to bear down sideways toward the "Albany." The "Clinton" was half way in the slip and half out in the river. The "Bear" was about as effective as a row boat holding her up.

Captain Magee immediately sized up the situation, blew for the "Bear" to get out of the way and hooked the "DeWitt" up full speed ahead. She sped out of the slip like shot from a gun. As she moved ahead, Captain Magee gave her left rudder to cant the "Clinton" 's stern away from the helpless "Albany." Even so, the big "DeWitt Clinton" missed the forward part of the "Albany" by inches. If she had hit the "Albany," the "Albany" would probably have sunk right at the spot. At the time, most of the "Albany" 's deckhands were asleep down in the fo'c'sle, below the water line at the bow.

The deck crew of the "Albany" was then roused out and we pulled her back to the inner berth. The "DeWitt Clinton," after making a circle in the river, came in and landed at the end of Pier 80 and backed around without further incident and took our former berth for the night.

The Day Line captains and pilots were all good boatmen and were superb in handling their steamboats under all conditions of wind and tide. The Day Liners were big, yet were of exceptionally shallow draft. As a result, they were particularly susceptible to the effects of wind.

Yet, it was an extremely rare occasion indeed when a mishap would occur in making a landing. On the Albany run there would be as many as nine landings and on the round trip run to Poughkeepsie as many as 14 landings would be made.

The captains and pilots had all started their steamboat careers while still in their teens and most of them had come from the upper river. As a matter of fact, at the time of the incident related in today's article, three of the Day Line captains resided at Kingston — Captain J. Rodney Magee of the "DeWitt Clinton," his brother-in-law Captain Henry B. Briggs of the "Albany" and Captain Alonzo Sickles, Jr. of the "Hendrick Hudson."

The Old Day Liner "Albany" placidly paddles her way up river during the 1920's. In this shot, the steamer is rounding West Point with Constitution Island in the background.

As choreographer, he staged ten of his own compositions as well as re-mounting such works as, West Side Story, Oklahoma, Paint Your Wagon, and many others. In New York he appeared weekly in television series and later produced and directed. Turning his attention more and more to teaching, he left the professional theatre for a career as a dance educator and administrator.

Locally he is dance director at West Point Military Academy, artistic director of the Newburgh Ballet Guild, Inc., and is currently conducting evening adult courses in dance and drama at State University College, New Paltz.

Students applying for enrollment under deMayo at the New Paltz School of Ballet may direct any inquiries by writing the school.

The world's longest running uninterrupted film festival — The High Falls Film Festival — swings into its Fall activities Saturday, Sept. 8, with the screening of one of the best political comedies ever made: Frank Capra's MR. SMITH GOES TO WASHINGTON. The show begins at 8 p.m. at the High Falls firehouse.

According to Romeo Muller, the dapper, goateed factotum of film festival fun, the main film will probably be preceded by the first chapter of the Flash Gordon serial. The old space serial is itself a kind of underground camp classic. Future Festival screenings will feature chapters from the serial.

MR. SMITH GOES TO WASHINGTON tells the story of a small town Boy Scout leader (Jimmy Stewart) who gets elected to the Senate only to discover that Washington is a cesspool of political shenanigans rather than a pinnacle of patriotism. Stewart's performance is a classic portrayal of American innocence. He is supported by Jean Arthur, Claude Rains, Edward Arnold, and a bevy of Hollywood character actors playing an assortment of slimy, unscrupulous U.S. Senators. According to Muller, when the film was made in 1939 it was previewed before the Senate, which was furious. "Seen in the context of today, it seems almost patriotic. We might say it's the Film Festival's homage to Watergate," Muller added.

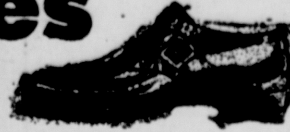

In a recent article, New York Magazine suggested that anyone interested in what's happening in Washington today should see this film.

With this showing, the High Falls Film Festival will be sponsored by the Marletown Artists' Association. A tiny donation will be asked at the door.

Pen-Pals

Patti LuPone has found a pen-pal in R. J. Purkey, who is prisoner number 29175 at the Great Meadows Correctional Facility at Comstock.

Patti is part of the City Center Acting Company — which has just ended its second season of summer residency at the Spa Center Theater of the Saratoga Performing Arts Center — and which in July went to Comstock with the company's acclaimed production of Brendan Behan's "The Hostage."

Prison inmates reacted initially with hostility toward the young company, but by the time "The Hostage" was over, prisoners and actors sat around the theater and talked about the play that, in the long run, they had all very much enjoyed.

One of the inmates Patti LuPone talked to was R. J. Purkey, and last week Patti got a letter from the prison forwarding Purkey's request to correspond with her.

"Of course I will," said Patti. "That's really great. Going to the prison that day was one of the most worthwhile things we've done. We ought to go back there and do more of that kind of thing."

R. J. Purkey is just one of the prisoners at Comstock who wholeheartedly agrees.

Twenty-five years ago there were only three professional chamber music quartets concertizing in the U.S., and the Maverick—already more than a quarter of a century old then—offered them a place to make music. Today there are two dozen chamber quartets of top quality—and the Maverick continues to attract most of them season after season.

Stunningly controlled technique of artist Robert Orsini is evident in this work painted at Dover Air Force Base. A magical tour of the enchanted world of Orsini may be taken currently at Woodstock's Lewis Gallery, where his one-man show is on view now through Sept. 6. Only 25-years-old, Orsini has been the recipient of various major awards; has had many one-man shows.

There's Magic in Orsini's Art

Isolating objects in a simple space so that the focus or attention on the object itself becomes all important is unique to the work of artist Robert Orsini. In this recent painting, entitled "New Shoes," a pair of boots as the object seems to generate an energy and become something more than boots. It is one of many works in his solo show at Woodstock's Lewis Gallery, open to the public every afternoon except Tuesday, now through Sept. 6.

Fair With Flair

It'll be a fair with a flair — countrified and sophisticated at one and the same time. Totally delightful, it'll combine fair buying with inspired music, a champagne party, and a dinner with an Italian accent.

It's the Philharmonic Country Fair, to benefit the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, and it'll hold forth at the Hyde Park Playhouse from Sept. 21-23. Any of the three dates is a good time to go, but Ulster County residents should definitely partake on Sept. 22, which is "Ulster's Night."

But each and every night, your initial $5 donation will entitle you to enjoy a gala musical program beginning at 7:30, followed by a champagne party on stage to meet the orchestra. And every evening, too, there'll be a sit-down supper, catered by The Silver Horn, and offering — at moderate cost, an appetizing menu of chicken cacciatore, salad, Italian bread, pastry and beverage.

There'll be lots to see and do at the Philharmonic Country Fair: a country store, plant stand, cafe, international baked goods and other foods, attic treasures, an art gallery, crafts and jewelry, children's games, a zoo, an orchestra touch booth. And lots to buy: stationery items.

Fair hours will be Friday, Sept. 21, 7 to 11 p.m.; Saturday, Sept. 22, 10 a.m. to 11 p.m.; Sunday, Sept. 23, 12 noon to 6 p.m.

Humphrey Bogart runs Rick's place; romances Ingrid Bergman in "Casablanca," the now legendary classic out of World War II, to be shown at Upstate on Oct. 10.

Class comedy will be emphasized on the night of Sept. 26 during the Rhinebeck course when Clark Gable woos and wins Claudette Colbert in "It Happened One Night."

A Course We Endorse!

Breaths there a movie buff with soul so dead, who never to himself has said:

"That Little Caesar was an O.K. guy — even if he was headed for Sing Sing."

Or:

"Nobody ever looked as good with a barbershop shave and a two-dollar haircut as Clark Gable."

If you're one of those film lovers who has never walked out on a movie right down to the bitter popcorny end, you have cause to rejoice. Rhinebeck's Upstate Films has come up with a course for the movie fan, and its burgeoning with the cavalier elan of heroes and heroines of the past.

It'll be a Wednesday Night Film Course, surveying the American Film Industry from Sound 'til Now; will feature both film showings and guest speakers. Every Wednesday night from Sept. 12 to Nov. 14, from 7:30 to 10:00 p.m., the course will provide entertainment and education.

For the $18 fee involved, you'll see 11 great movies; hear lectures and discussions that'll add to your understanding of Hollywood. Registration is through Dutchess Community College (471-4500) and ends Sept. 6. Or single admissions each Wednesday will be $2.50.

How sound shook up the industry will be demonstrated Sept. 12 when "Singin' in the Rain," with Gene Kelly, Donald O'Connor and Debbie Reynolds, kicks off the course. Edward G. Robinson is the merciless killer in "Little Caesar," the film that will explore the genres and themes of the '30s on Sept. 19. Fun with Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert is on the bill Sept. 26 when the genres and themes of the '30s comedies is highlighted with "It Happened One Night."

Emphasis on Oct. 3 (when film critic Herman Weinberg guests) will be on the individual director — Josef Von Sternberg in this case, when his "Dishonored," starring Marlene Dietrich as Mata Hari, will be shown. Hollywood on the battle lines and at home during World War II takes over Oct. 10, when John Huston's "Battle of San Pietro," and the legendary "Casablanca," with Ingrid Bergman and Humphrey Bogart, will be featured. Woodstock screen writer, Howard Koch, who scripted "Casablanca," will be the guest speaker on the evening of Oct. 17. Another of his films, "Mission to Moscow," will be shown, and he'll talk on blacklisting and the social films of the '40s.

The western will be discussed Oct. 24, when John Wayne will also ride across the screen in "Red River." Horror with a cold war context is next, when the 1956 film, "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," with Dana Wynter and Kevin McCarthy unreels. Nov. 7 brings Norman Mailer's "Beyond the Law" to Rhinebeck to illustrate the independent features made during the '60s. And, finally, cinema sex and censorship will be the subject Nov. 14 with a contemporary film being shown along with Mae West's 1933 romp in "I'm No Angel."

Definitely a course we endorse, whether popcorn is served or not!

Clayworks Artists

"CLAYWORKS" show currently holding forth at Woodstock's Polari Gallery brings a bright new look to the total environment. In foreground are Totem Figures by Billi Luisi, backed by other clay creations of Sabra Segal, Norman Bacon, Sophia Fenton, Jolyn Hofsted. Also on view: drawings by Donna Albright and paintings and collages by Segal and Bacon.

An Autumn Wine Tasting

Les Amis du Vin

It's wine tasting season again (that time of good fellowship and gracious living), and it kicks off this year in Ulster County with "An Autumn Evening with American Varietals." Adding special appeal to the evening (Wednesday, Sept. 19 at 7:15 p.m.) is the fact that the tasting will be held at the ever-gracious Mohonk Mountain House outside New Paltz.

Presented by the New Paltz Chapter of "Les Amis du Vin," it's a first of its kind, since only American varietal wines will be sampled. Six sparkling varieties, accompanied with fine cheeses, will be served.

From California: Wente Brothers-Pinot Chardonnay — 1971; Charles Krug-Pinot Chardonnay — 1971; Louis M. Martini-Cabernet Sauvignon — 1968. From our own New York State: Dr. Konstantin Frank-Pinot Chardonnay — 1969. From the State of Washington: Ste. Michelle-Cabernet Sauvignon — 1969.

How much of a "first" it'll be is noted by Nick Campas, wine master of the Paltz chapter, and Kevin Zraly, Les Amis' regional director. "This is the first all-American varietal wine-tasting presented in the State of New York," they say. And add: "We have selected some of America's finest wines to show wine-lovers that America can produce wines that can hold their own with some of the finest imports."

At Mohonk, one of the leading personalities in the wine field, Creighton Churchill, will introduce each wine, enlightening those attending with its background.

It'll be a night to remember and the price (including wines and cheeses) is just $5.50 for members and $6.50 for the general public. If you're intrigued, send your check immediately to "Les Amis du Vin," Box 1050, New Paltz, N.Y. 12561, since reservations will be limited to only 125 persons. So, hurry, since participants are expected to descend on Lake Mohonk from throughout the state.

MOVIES

THE DAY OF THE JACKAL. A suspense-packed thriller of a professional assassin hired to kill General Charles de Gaulle, veteran Fred Zinnemann's film in Technicolor of the Frederick Forsyth best-selling book of the same title, is the current attraction at Kingston's Community Theatre. It stars a socko performance by the relatively unknown Edward Fox as "The Jackal." Co-starring are Cyril Cusack, Michel Lonsdale, Eric Porter and Delphine Seyrig.

Zinnemann and screenwriter Kenneth Ross have succeeded magnificently in distilling, without blunting, Forsyth's fluid story in fine cinematic terms. And both the cast and the locales fit perfectly into the period of the film — 1963.

Fox, who won the British Academy Award for 1971 as Best Supporting Actor for his role in "The Go-Between," is chillingly real as the planner of the killing of de Gaulle. He is meticulous in every facet of the work he has been hired to do at a fee of $500,000. And he is backed up by an inspired cast of established screen and stage actors of both England and France in the rest of the major roles.

This is a memorable film of almost unbearable tension that threads a thin line between fact and fiction. Fine entertainment for everyone, except pre-teenagers.

PAPER MOON. Held over for a third week currently at Kingston's Mayfair, this Peter Bogdanovich production starring Ryan O'Neal. It also introduces 9-year-old Tatum O'Neal, Ryan's real-life daughter, to the screen and co-stars Madeline Kahn and John Hillerman. Filmed on locations in Kansas and Missouri, it's the tale of an unlikely alliance between a down-at-the-heels con artist and a hard-bitten young girl who turns out to be better at the game than he is. Light, delightful and entertaining summer fare.

Edward Fox manages to meet Delphine Seyrig in "The Day of the Jackal," the film that explores a plan to kill General Charles de Gaulle. It's now playing at Kingston's Community Theatre.

LAST TANGO IN PARIS. Some say it's pornography; some say it's art. You can decide for yourself currently at either Poughkeepsie's Juliet Theatre or the Hunter Theatre in Hunter. It offers Marlon Brando as a brooding middle-aged American expatriate, and Maria Schneider, as a naughty young Paris actress. As a team, they boldly indulge in some very intimate experiences. Exotic and erotic.

THE LAST OF SHEILA. At Poughkeepsie's Overlook Drive-In currently, this movie mystery about a Hollywood producer (James Coburn) who invites six friends on a Mediterranean cruise to see if he can learn if one of them was responsible for his wife's mysterious death. He dreams up an after-dinner game to discover who has a guilty secret, and it all makes for an intriguing plot. Good mystery fun with Dyan Cannon, Richard Benjamin, James Mason, Joan Hackett and Raquel Welch, in addition to Coburn.

UPSTATE FILMS. Tonight's your last night to see "The Big Store" at Rhinebeck's Upstate Films. Insanity runs rampant in a department store in this 1941 film as the Marx Brothers become store detectives.

From Sept. 6-9, Upstate will be offering "Grand Hotel," a smash hit out of 1932 that paired the glamorous team of Greta Garbo and John Barrymore. Garbo plays a fading, disillusioned dancer who finds hope through her love for Barrymore as a shady nobleman. It won an Academy Award for Best Picture that year.

THE STONE KILLER and DIRTY LITTLE BILLY. This twosome makes up the current double feature at the local Sunset Drive-In. "Killers" has Charles Bronson as a cop who plays dirty and wages a one-man war on organized crime. Martin Balsam co-stars. "Billy" stars Michael J. Pollard (of "Bonnie and Clyde" and "Little Fauss" fame and a resident of Woodstock for the past several years).

WHITE LIGHTNING. At the Hyde Park Drive-In, this movie starring Burt Reynolds as a moonshiner sprung from a penitentiary by treasury agents who want him to entrap a crooked sheriff, played by Ned Beatty. Some great stunt driving and car crashes by Reynolds and a marvelous performance by Beatty.

MARY POPPINS. Back for a return engagement at Red Hook's Lyceum, this Julie Andrews-Dick Van Dyke musical, one of the most popular of all time with youngsters. Miss Andrews is a nanny in Victorian London, who flies with the aid of an umbrella and sings any number of delightful songs. Van Dyke dances and clowns as a chimney sweep.

Holiday Special Closing Season

The Woodstock Playhouse has scheduled a special holiday performance of "AS YOU LIKE IT" for Labor Day, Monday, September 3 at 7 p.m.

"AS YOU LIKE IT" which began the summer program at the Playhouse has been a consistent crowd pleaser among the festival productions this summer. Critic Walter Borawski of the Poughkeepsie Journal called it "a delightful production." Martin Kelly of the Albany Times Union called the actors "engaging," the production "full of fun."

The extra performance will close out the summer season of the festival theatre. Performances will continue in September with weekend performances scheduled beginning September 6.

Creating a Film Program's Topic

Frank Wright, an independent film maker from High Falls, will present a program entitled "The Creating of a Film Designed to Promote a Product or an Opinion," at the next regular meeting of the Marbletown Artists' Association. The program will start at 9 p.m. following a short business meeting on Tuesday, September 4 at the Legion Hall on Route 209 in Stone Ridge. The public is most welcome to attend.

Frank Wright is a young filmmaker who has directed and produced films in New York City and locally, and has taught a filmmaking class at SUNY College in New Paltz. Samples of various kinds of films such as documentaries, educational, and TV commercials will be shown. Included in the program will be discussion of the problems of producing, writing, directing, budgeting, equipment, editing, and distribution encountered by the independent filmmaker. Student and underground films will also be shown, followed by open discussion.

Thigh-slapping Die Bergragabunten Schuhplattlers performed folk dances to much applause and laughter at the second annual Woodstock Bavarian Festival held recently in Woodstock. Sponsored by the Ontario Lions Club, it attracted more than 3,000; had all the Oktoberfest nostalgia anyone could want. (Freeman photo by H. Pete Powell)

In the American Alps, Bavarian Hijinks Have Been the B-I-G Thing In the Summer of '73

Rip Van Winkle was on hand to tap the first keg on opening day of the Purling festival, and to toast a "prosit" with Suzanne Bauer. Rip stayed on for the rest of the fest, which ran for 10 long days. Roving musicians and Ross the Magician were also part of the daily scene there.

Bavarian costumes and German style steins were much in evidence at both the Ulster County festival and its Greene County counterpart. In this instance, the scene's at Purling—with Suzanne Bauer dressed in the dirndl and Edgar Messerschmidt sporting the lederhosen. (Freeman photo by John Kruh)

Hand-blown glass creations of Franz Zoellner attracted constant crowd of on-lookers on the festival grounds of Purling's Bavarian Manor. So did the Edelweiss schuhplattlers from Willing, Bavaria; the outdoor beer garden; and such German foods with a Munich accent as weiner schnitzel and sauerbraten. Greene County festival was put on by Exposition Planners, Ltd. (Freeman photo by John Kruh)

Woodcarver Emil Kronschnabl came from Lautzenbach in West Germany's Bavaria to demonstrate his talent at the Purling festival. Other craftsmen from abroad and from the Catskills area also worked daily at the near-Cairo festival. Import gift shops and clothing stores lured visitors, and entertainment features included a soccer tournament and amusement rides for the youngsters. (Freeman photo by John Kruh)

Walter and Mardell Maier, of Glenford, were among those competing in the Adult Bavarian Dancing Contest at the Woodstock Bavarian Festival. It was all part of the "rolling out the fun" day that brought the times the Germans call "Gemutlichkeit" to the Catskills this summer of '73. (Freeman photo by H. Pete Powell)

Extraordinary Art Work Of the Mountain Top

Kurt Sluizer, Woodstock artist and resident since 1943, evaluates paintings for possible ribbon awards during the 27th Annual Exhibit of Twilight Park Artists. Show was held recently at the Twilight Park clubhouse in Haines Falls; offered some extraordinary art work of the Mountain Top in its more than 100 paintings, sculpture pieces, photographs, collages, rugs and children's work. Photos were judged by Sidonia Palace of Jewett Center, associate editor of The Windham Journal, and the big first prize winner in two adult categories was Ken Snyder, Hunter-Tannersville Central School art teacher.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Everybody knows all 'bout Phase IV, Watergate, and the price of pork, but did you know that:

Mike Mattia's dog died. Yep! But Mike and his wife, owners of Artistic Beauty Salon, missed "Greta" so-o-o much, they bought a new pup. Its name? Not "Greta II," but "Greta, TOO."

Good news for Connelly residents. That little old school house up on Gerard Street is no longer vacant. Thanks to Richard Berg. Seems Rich bought the school, put on an addition, and Connelly has itself a new business: Berg Sheet Metal Inc. Some mighty welcome sounds are echoin' out of the schoolhouse these days. But this time, it's not the ABC's.

Anybody who ever took a bus trip with the late Tessie Mayonne will remember Lou Jones, her righthand man. Lou is now in Florida, sings periodically at Miami clubs, was married Aug. 18 in Miami to Maxine Westbrook who hails from Connelly. The two of 'em flew here last week for a reception at Chef Jo Mar's in Highland. Maxine re-wore her wedding gown, Lou his white dinner jacket. 'Twas just as lovely the second-time-around.

Preview showing of Dutch Village on Washington Avenue was posh. Gentlemen at entrance parked guests' cars; gala reception was given in foyer; huge lobby soars to cathedral ceilings; Y-shaped stairway leads to balcony; beautiful Blue Delft chandeliers. Village boasts pool, recreation building, saunas, private balconies, intercom to screen guests. You name it; it has it!

Soap opera fans'll be happy to learn that, according to Ellen Cohn of TV Guide, Stephanie Braxton who plays Laurie Stevens on "Secret Storm," plans to become a "landowner near Woodstock; wants to build a little shack, nothing fancy." (Rich Berg got hold of Connelly school just in time.)

On Aug. 19, we mentioned that Chef Robert Martinez, noted culinary expert, known worldwide as Chef Robert of Paris, was chef at A La Bonne Table in Rosendale. WAS is the word! Tho he was there Grand Opening week, the time covered by Aug. 19 column, Chef Robert of Paris left A La Bonne Table establishment approximately three weeks ago.

People are still talkin' 'bout that old fashioned block party at Johnston Avenue-Lounsburry Place area . . . . . Ted and Kathleen Kuehn picked up an Ulster County Gazette dated Jan. 4, 1800 at antique store in Dallas, Tex.; priced at $2.50 . . . . . Hudson Valley Federal bendin' over backwards to please the public; during those hot, humid days, outside thermometer registered 8 degrees — called Instant Chill!

Good-natured Mary Minasian Cramer's always gifting someone with a present. Last week it was bald 'n beautiful Joe Kelly. The gift? A heap of Head 'n Shoulders coupons . . . . . Rita Mary Senor, Kingston's popular singer, guitarist, actress, is one of nine students out of 900 at Boston U. selected to teach English-speakin' students in Brussels from Sept. to Jan., '74 . . . . . One of most impressive sights at Dutchess County Fair was the world's largest steer weighin' in at 3,400 lbs. Or "10,000 hamburgers on the hoof." Looks like we're back to Phase IV and the price of meat again!

Gilbert O'Sullivan, who was among this year's Grammy Awards nominees, will be the big attraction at Saratoga Performing Arts Center for the final Special Events concert of the summer season. O'Sullivan will bring his letter sweater, piano, and British flair for pop music to the big outdoor amphitheatre on Thursday, Sept. 13 at 8 p.m. to wind-up the 1973 Festival that has included ballet, orchestra, special events, films, concerts and live stage presentations.

Travel Tips

If you never believed there are really 1,000 islands in the St. Lawrence River, you're right. There are more than 1,800. The Thousand Islands-St. Lawrence area has long been — and still is — home to numerous "Robinson Crusoes," and it's a great place to visit or vacation — whether you settle for one island or hundreds.

Ever run into an aoudad? Let's hope not — at least not head on in the dark. The aoudad, a sheeplike animal from North Africa, is three feet high with two-foot-long horns. Your best chance to meet an aoudad is at a zoo or game park, of which New York State has many, with a listing available free from the New York State Department of Commerce, 112 State Street, Albany, N.Y. 12207.

Captain Kidd's treasure is rumored to be buried somewhere at the eastern end of Long Island — or somewhere along the Hudson River — or just somewhere. For those who lean toward the Hudson theory, Kidd's Plug, part of a craggy cliff on the Hudson called Crow's Nest, is said to conceal a cavern in which the pirate hid much of his gold. While tourists and vacationers can't be sure about the treasure, they can be certain that the hilly area surrounding the Hudson River shelters any number of lively vacation spots — and the beauty of the whole thing is, they're all close to home for those of us living in this area.

TO THE HOUNDS!

Khorol, Tovarish and Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Jupiter have fallen in love with the City Center Acting Company.

When John Houseman's acting troupe, in its second season of summer residence this year at the Spa Summer Theatre of Saratoga Performing Arts Center, began rehearsing the company's premiere performance of Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure," Houseman began scouring the area in search of two regal-looking wolf hounds to be used in a brief scene of the play as part of the Duke's court.

Finally, he located Khorol and Tovarish (the former is the name of an old Russian city and the latter is the Russian word for "comrade") at the home of their owners, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Jupiter of Schenectady. The couple agreed to rent out the Russian wolf hounds to the company, at a set rate for rehearsals and performances. Such was the arrangement for the show's initial run in July.

By the time "Measure for Measure" was repeated for an additional week's run in August, however, the Jupiters had become so enamored of the professional young acting troupe that they willingly loaned the canines to the company at no charge.

"We believe the acting company is inspirational," says Mrs. Jupiter. "The people in it are talented and kind and we felt strongly that we wanted to do whatever we could to help them." And Khorol and Tovarish yelped in agreement.

The Arts In Brief

The annual "Art for Art Sale" of the Woodstock Artists Association will run from Sept. 20-26 this year and benefit Native American artists through the American Indian Movement. Fifty per cent of the fast moving sales will go for this purpose and is tax deductible. The other 50 per cent goes to the artist. Last year's sale which benefited WAA's Burr House grossed $3,000 in three days. WAA hopes to top that record with this year's sale. Area artists who would like to take part should contact Woodstock Artists Association.

Two Dutchess County students were among the five prize winners who gleaned awards for outstanding and original ideas celebrating the Sixth Sharon Audubon Festival theme, "Love the World, For It Is Yours." The Festival, held recently, was sponsored by the Housatonic Audubon Society for the Sharon Audubon Center, and 275 entries were submitted. A prize winner in the art category was Kenney Stippa, an 11th grader of Pine Plains. A winning essay was penned by Jerome Moynihan, a sixth grader of Millbrook, who wrote on "Build a Better Earth."

the Catskill Art Society, held recently at the Sullivan County Museum, Hurleyville. Freshman Thomas Anderson of Beacon showed four pieces sculptured in wood: Silent Majority, Madonna, Bro-Stool and Black Moses. Freshman Kenly Dillard of Newburgh exhibited four oil paintings: Aunt Blanche, Two Women, Black Angel and a composite of portraits of members of the Mount Saint Mary College community.

'Quintet In The Quarry'

It'll be a unique event and it's scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 8 at 2:30 p.m.: a concert by the Eastern Brass Quintet in an unusual outdoor setting to be followed by a gala Champagne Buffet.

Sculptor Harvey Fite will open his monumental sculptural achievement, "OPUS 40," to the public for this event. OPUS 40, an environmental sculpture of swirling blue-stone ramps and platforms, terraces and quarry pools, occupies the site of an abandoned bluestone quarry in High Woods and covers several acres. The Eastern Brass Quintet, a first ranking concert and recording group will perform in the newly completed amphitheatre section.

Founded in 1970, the Eastern Brass Quintet has become a truly outstanding ensemble of its kind. Without educational affiliation or subsidy, its members have molded an ensemble whose performing repertory, concert engagements and critical reviews are "second to none." Each of the five members has impressive experience as a professional musician, and the extent to which they have blended their style of playing and outlook on music is indeed remarkable.

Upon arrival, ticket holders will wish to spend a leisurely time exploring and enjoying the impact of this unusual place. Guides will be stationed at various points to answer questions and direct guests. The concert is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Following the concert a gala champagne buffet will be served on the lawns adjacent to the quarry.

The Mid-Hudson Madrigal Singers will provide further musical enjoyment during the buffet.

The event will benefit the Maverick Sunday Concerts, now the oldest continuous concert series (58 years) in the United States. In the past the Maverick solicited private contributions, but until now has not held a fund raising event. Like other Woodstock cultural endeavors, the Maverick Concerts Series is faced with ever-rising costs . . . government and foundation grants are available, but the Maverick must first show increasing community interest to secure them.

In the manner of the old Maverick Festivals, this is an opportunity for all to show their support of this vital series, while enjoying a unique event. Tickets are $15 per person and are tax-deductible. Tickets are available in Woodstock at JUST ALAN, ANN LEONARD, FOLK ART, CATSKILL BOOK SHOP, WOODSTOCK ANTIQUES and the POLARI GALLERY. In Kingston at SHAPIRO PAINTS and SCHNELLER MEATS; or write to Maverick Concerts Inc., P.O. Box 102, Woodstock, N.Y. or call 679-2456.

Eastern Brass Quintet (trombone, trumpets, French horn and tuba), a first-ranking concert and recording group, will perform in the newly completed amphitheatre section of Harvey Fite's "Opus 40" quarry for a Maverick Concerts fund-raising event.

Award-Winning Author Offering Workshops

Fiction fans know that he is the author of two such books — "Nickel Miseries," published by Viking Press in 1963, and "Sick Friends," printed in 1969 by E. P. Dutton. Readers of Playboy and other magazines are familiar with his stories.

Now, author Ivan Gold — currently a Woodstock resident, will conduct both beginning and advanced Writers Workshops in the art colony, beginning Oct. 1.

Gold has been the recipient of such major awards as a Guggenheim Fellowship, an Ingram-Merrill Foundation Fellowship, an Institute of Arts and Letters award, a National Foundation of Arts and Letters grant, and — just this year — a New York State Council on the Arts award.

No newcomer to teaching, he has taught creative writing classes at Bard College, in addition to participating in writers' seminars at many colleges and universities.

Anyone interested in learning the rudiments of writing or in polishing their prose in Gold's fall Writers Workshops should write him at P.O. Box 11, Woodstock, or call him at 679-7107 for details.

MORE AND MORE NEW CAR BUYERS ARE SAYING . . .

Why settle for a car when you can own a Cadillac?

The facts are these:

Cadillac is winding up the greatest sales year in its history. Which means that right now we're in a position to make Cadillac ownership especially attractive to you.

Further, your present car will probably never be worth more to us than it is right now.

The conclusion is this:

For surprisingly little more than you might pay for a car of lesser stature, we can put you in a new 1973 Cadillac. And you know what that can mean in terms of riding comfort, features and styling.

What you might not know is what a wise investment a Cadillac is. Figures show that traditionally it leads all U.S. car makes in resale value.

Further, to help protect that investment, we're ready with prompt, dependable after-the-sale warranty service.

So why settle for a car . . . when you can own a Cadillac? Come on in and own up to Cadillac . . . today.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

Our Story: A BROKEN-HEARTED ARN SAILS FOR TRONDHEIMFJORD AND HIS HOME AT CASTLE VIKINGSHOLM, THERE TO FIND COMFORT WITH HIS FAMILY.....

.....WHILE LYDIA, AT HER FATHER'S COMMAND, RIDES TO HOLVIK. OH, HOW SHE LONGS, TO FOLLOW ARN AND EXPLAIN THAT THORVOLD IS HER BROTHER AND NOT A LONG-LOST SWEETHEART.

ARN HAS BEEN ON HIS OWN SO LONG, HE HAS ALMOST FORGOTTEN HOW WONDERFUL IT IS TO BE WITH HIS LOVED ONES. HE FINDS IT DIFFICULT TO FEEL SORRY FOR HIMSELF.

WHILE IN HOLVIK, KING HAAKON THE FIRST PRESENTS HIS SON AND HEIR TO HIS NEW SUBJECTS. WITH CHEERS AND SWORDS BEATING ON SHIELDS, THE PEOPLE WELCOME A KING DIFFERENT IN EVERY WAY FROM THE WEAKLINGS OF THE PAST.

ARN REGALES HIS FOLKS WITH THE STORY OF HIS ADVENTURES. NEVER HAS HE BEEN SO WITTY, SO GAILY TALKATIVE. BUT ALETA, WATCHING HIM, KNOWS HER SON IS TROUBLED.

FOR OFTEN HE WALKS ALONE IN THE FOREST. HE NEITHER HUNTS NOR FISHES, BUT SEEKS ONLY SOLITUDE.....

.....SOMETIMES MERRY, SOMETIMES SAD. WELL SHE KNOWS THE SYMPTOMS. ARN IS IN LOVE! SHE IS WISE ENOUGH NOT TO QUESTION HIM, KNOWING HE WILL COME TO HER WHEN THE TIME COMES.
